

ESTIMATES ON NEW CITY HALL IS THE FIRST STEP

Probable Cost of Joint Office Building Is Now Sought

Appointment of a committee to determine the cost of securing the services of an architect to estimate on the probable expense of erecting a joint city and county building was the first definite step decided upon by city and county commissioners at their session yesterday afternoon in the council chamber.

Commissioner E. Z. Gross, Commissioner Charles W. Burnett, of city council, and Commissioner C. C. Cumber, president of the city council board, were appointed by Mayor Daniel L. Keister on this committee. As soon as they are ready to report another joint conference will be called. It was decided the best move would be to find the cost of securing an architect.

It is understood the city and county will divide this cost equally, but a State law requires that in case the county commissioners intend to spend more than a certain amount of money for any work or material, bids must be asked. If an architect can be secured without such a proceeding much time can be saved, the commissioners expressed.

The officials decided an architect should be furnished with an approximate estimate of floor space needed for city and for county purposes, the figure to be as nearly accurate as possible, after which he would be asked to submit tentative plans and an estimate of the probable cost of the structure.

Whether the site of the present courthouse can be used for the building will be another problem for the architect, officials decided. It was evident from the opinions expressed at the conference that the city and county commissioners do not consider seriously the selection of a site elsewhere, although there is much public sentiment favoring the erection of the joint building on a site facing Capitol Park.

Removal of the county hall to an industrial park is established on the outskirts of the city was suggested, but the county commissioners intimated that the expense involved might be too great and they would not care to consider such a plan now if the cost would be too high.

There was much discussion of the proposal made by county officials that the city should pay one-half the estimated value of the present courthouse site if it is decided to build on it. In such an event the city would be compelled to add about $150,000 for ground to its share in the cost of the building.

All the officials agreed that the need for a new structure is urgent and that it would be a big saving to taxpayers if a joint structure is erected. The total cost of the building with complete equipment may reach $1,000,000 it was predicted yesterday. The county's share of this amount can be raised by a loan vote by the people at a future election.

CAPITOL WAITS FOR DECISIONS

Wilson Bill and Revenue Policy Farnish Themes

It seems to be generally believed that the appropriation limit this year will be the record-breaking figure of $90,000,000 and if that figure is approved by the Governor after he receives estimates from Auditor General Snyder the appropriation bills will be introduced to-night.

It is probable that the Snyder series of bills to stiffen up the State tax and license collection methods which are in the House will be pushed through next week in order to facilitate collections. The general opinion prevails that there will be no tax imposed on manufacturing capital.

One end of the bow rested somewhere in the South hills and the other came to an abrupt stop in Liberty avenue, lighting up in gay colors the large building at Ninth street, occupied by the Pittsburgh branch of the Federal Reserve Bank.
