S. S. Association Holds Annual Spring Meeting

The twentieth district of the Dauphin County Sabbath School Association, including all Sunday MAY DAY MUSICAL Story Tellers League Helde Closing N schools on Allison Hill and east of Cameron street, is holding its spring meeting to-day at the Market Street Baptist Church, Fifteenth and Mar-

Baptist Church, Fifteenth and Mar-ket streets. At this afternoon's session re-ports for the past year were made, a nominating committee appointed to nominate officers for the coming year, and matters discussed relative to the welfare of the district work, including the entertaining of the county convention in June. Cards taken at a religious census held two weeks ago were given to the various Sunday school representatives. This evening John F. Kob, dis-trict supervisor of Harrisburg public schools, will speak on "The Sunday School Teacher of the Future." At this session action will be taken on the report made by the nominating committee.

And the universally accepted costume for work and for street is the well-tailored suit - just as with men. But it doesn't need to be severe as a man's — unless you prefer it. You may have some braiding or a clever silk vest, you may have straight lines or semi-fitted, you may be plain or fancy about your Spring suit, but in any case -

You may be sure, if you get it at my shop, that it has the best material, the best dyes and trimmings, and the best tailoring and fitting that New York can produce. And that the garments are as up-to-date as two or three trips a week to New York and a rush shipping system can make them - which means that they appear in my shop at about the same time as they do in those on Fifth Avenue.

Dorothy E. Haynes, 312 Hummel Street, Harrisburg, Pa. by a beautiful window looking at the suit Jack liked best. The next day as I was strolling leisurely down street I paused to look into a store window and didn't I see there a suit just like the one I dreamed Jack picked for me in Paris. In my next letter I told Jack how glad I was that he was on his way home and that I was going to wear my new suit to meet him at the station. I remembered then how his letter seemed to indicate his regret that I could not do my shopping in Paris. Then I wrote in big letters un-derlined twice Mary Sachs has a real Paris Shop at 210 North Third Street. All the mothers, wives and sweethearts are getting new suits from Mary Sachs. They go to her store for two reasons, to look their very best and to show the boys on their return that America has suits and dresses, gowns and girls even prettier than Paris.
