WOUNDED MAN FOUND ON TRACK Shot by Unknown Persons on Monday Night and Dies at Columbia

Columbia, Pa., May 28.—A man, supposed to be Bruno Troiano, was found lying along the tracks of the Fort Deposit Railroad Monday night after eleven o'clock, his right breast pierced with a bullet, and in a dying condition. A trackwalker was attracted to the spot by the report of two shots, and upon going to the scene, he heard men scrambling through the bushes and also heard the noise of an automobile. He sent word to the railroad authorities and the wounded man was taken to Columbia on an early morning freight train. He died, however, on the way. Before he died he was questioned by a railroad officer and said he had friends in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Lancaster, and being given a piece of paper he wrote the names of two men who were supposed to have been with him, and who, it is suspected, had shot him. The names were Frank Capp and Pietro Scortio. When the body was searched by the deputy coroner, he found a letter from a man signed "Sam Logan," and dated at Baltimore, Md., addressed to Troiano. Two other letters were found on the man and also over fifty dollars in money, two rings, a Hamilton watch, stick pin, and a kind of policeman's badge. A revolver with five barrels unexpired was also found at his side when he was picked up. The only clue advanced was given while the man was yet able to speak, when he said the men with him worked at a hotel in Lancaster. He appeared to be about thirty-five years of age, had black curly hair, slightly turned gray. He wore a gray silk cap.

Cumberland Valley News

CARLISLE WINS ON TRACK GRADE

Judge McPherson Decides in Favor of Borough in Action Against C. V. Railroad Carlisle, Pa., May 28.—Carlisle scored a point in the action brought by the borough of Carlisle against the Cumberland Valley Railroad to have the tracks of the company and the borough limits brought to grade. Judge McPherson, who specially presided, gave a decision favoring the town in this point. The case will, however, be appealed. The tracks in question are in West High street from West street west to the borough limits. They are at grade to West street, and beyond that swing close to the paving line and the surface is without grading, the roadbed being down some inches and the rails projecting above. The request of the borough to have a siding between West and College streets and a watchbox at College street declared nuisances and removed was not granted.

Carlisle, Pa., May 28.—Motion for a new trial has been made in the case of the Big Spring Electric Company of Newville against Kitzmiller Brothers of Shipensburg in which the plaintiff corporation was awarded a verdict of $54,000 for alleged nonpayment of bonds. Judge McPherson presided in this case.

VETERAN DIES AT HOSPITAL

Chambersburg, Pa., May 28.—Samuel Leddy, a prominent retired merchant and farmer of Marion, near here, died in the Chambersburg Hospital after a several weeks' illness with heart trouble. He was a veteran of the Civil War, having served as a member of Company D, One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He was wounded in the battle of Fredericksburg. He was for many years the proprietor of a general store in Marion and was also postmaster and express agent at that place.

WOMAN COMMITS SUICIDE

Chambersburg, Pa., May 28.—Returns of a fishing trip on Monday night and being unable to find his wife, Russell Nye, a young machine hand, searched through his home and finally discovered his body hanging by a rope from a rafter in the attic of the home. Nye cut down the body, but life was extinct. It is believed that Mrs. Nye, who was 27 years old, committed the deed about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. About that time she had called to Charles Butler, a cousin, who was living with her, to watch her two children, Mildred, aged four years, and Janet, aged ten months.

Carlisle, Pa., May 28.—With only one more day remaining, the Salvation Army campaign in Cumberland county is lagging. Latest reports show $8,000 subscribed in the county against a $10,000 quota. Carlisle is short $1,000 of the $4,500 quota.

Dying Man Scribbles Names That May Convict Slayers

Lancaster, Pa., May 28.—With the words "Frank Capp, Pietro Scortio, work in hotel," scribbled by a dying man in a freight car, the police are working on the only clew which led to the arrest of two men who are believed to have been the murderers of Bruno Troiano who was found bludgeoned to death on the Port Deposit Railroad, near York Furnace. He had been shot in the stomach. A freight train was stopped and Troiano taken to the Johns Hopkins hospital, but he died before reaching the institution. The two men who were with him when last seen were Frank Capp and Pietro Scortio, both of this city, and they were taken into custody late this afternoon. When surrounded by the police they made a desperate attempt to escape, but were run down after a chase in which they were taken to the place of the murder. Both denied any knowledge of how the murdered man came by his death, but both showed signs of having been in a fight. Capp is said to have served term in the Huntington Reformatory for larceny. The motive for the crime is a mystery, inasmuch as the victim's watch and money were untouched, but it was believed to have been the result of a feud. The three men chartered a special trolley car at Millersville last evening and went to Pottsville where they were seen walking down the river road, evidently headed for an Italian settlement. Two revolver shots were heard later by the trackwalker who found the dying man. The victim was a Baltimore man and had been in the city only a few days.
