GEN. ATTERBURY TELLS OF WORK BEHIND FRONT

Lauds Spirit of the Men Who
Toiled in Transportation Service

The achievements of the United States transportation service in France were praised yesterday by Brigadier General William W. Atterbury, who reached his home in Radnor after nearly two years' service in France. His staff officers, and from Philadelphia, returned with him.

He returns with the Legion of Honor medal which was awarded him for services in France, the Distinguished Service Medal, awarded him for services in France, the Distinguished Service Medal, awarded by the American Expeditionary Force, and the Honorable Order of the Companions of the Bath given by the British government. The General gave the following outline of his work overseas:

"The transportation problem that confronted the American expeditionary forces, briefly and generally stated, was as follows:

"First, Ports—It was perfectly clear from the very outset that, to take care of the tonnage the A. E. F. would bring into France, it would be necessary to utilize to the maximum of the complete state on special ships, thus involving but little work and, what was much more important, relleving the port of St. Nazaire to that extent, as we could take care of the partially erected locomotives at Brest.

"To give an idea of what the program to have 4,000,000 men in France by the summer of 1919 means, so far arranging to have in France by that time 4,000 locomotives and 98,000 states of the partially erected locomotives are sare and locomotives and 98,000 states of the partially erected locomotives are concerned. It may be stated that we were arranging to have in France by that time 4,000 locomotives and 98,000 states of the partially erected locomotives are concerned. It may be stated that we were arranging to have in France by that the post of the partially erected locomotives are concerned. Lancaster Convention

Harrisburg osteopathic physicians have returned from the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Osteopathic Association, held last week in Lancaster. The meeting was the largest ever held and was attended by prominent physicians from this and other States. A feature of the annual banquet was an address by Thomas Skey-hill, an Australian, who regained his sight as the result of osteopathic treatment after having been blinded during the war and suffering for two years. The osteopaths are bitterly disappointed that President Wilson did not grant them the right to practice in the Army hospitals, it being their contention that they could have saved thousands of soldiers whose condition made them particularly responsive to osteopathic treatment.
