Fifteen Men Pleasantly Entertained at Martin Home, in Evergreen Street

SATURDAY EVENING.

One would never have believed they were invalids, those fifteen happy soldier men from the General Army Hospital at Carlisle, who came by invitation of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Martin, Evergreen street, to their home yesterday. Trucks and the car of Miss Elizabeth Derr, a motor messenger from Wilkes-Barre, brought the men here.

One man said this was his first entrance into a real home for two years and others had much the same story to tell. Mr. and Mrs. Martin and their daughters, the Misses Sara and Hazel Martin, had prepared an informal program of entertainment for their guests, and the old time peanut hunt, contests of various sorts and a hat-trimming party were all thoroughly enjoyed parry were all thoroughly enjoyed.

It was wonderful to see how, with gay crepe paper and quantities of pins, the men made military and pattern hats, which they wore during the afternoon. A photograph was taken of the entire party which will be a prized sourvenir of a happy day.

will be a prized sour day.

The house was decorated with American flags, and after an elaborate dinner there was music, some of the men singing delightfully. Assisting the hosts were Mrs. Jacob Dubbs, Miss Cressmon and Miss Santee.

Beautiful Costumes For Commencement

Graduation! On only one other occasion is a girl the target for so many eyes-and that is her wedding.

How did she look as she received her diploma? That is a memory which will remain with her relatives and friends for years. And, of course, she'll be photographed in her graduation gown.

Is graduation a time to scrimp and count the pennies? Hardly. She can wear her costume to dances and evening functions for months thereafter. Let it do full credit to her dainty girlish beauty.

I am anxious to have my shop recognized as headquarters for graduation gowns and hats and all the necessary accessories. I want the young girls to become familiar with my stock and establishment. Hence I am offering exceptional inducements in the shape of really remarkable values in beautiful gowns for graduation and commencement.
