Hog Cholera—Stringent quarantine measures, which forbade the shipment of hogs except for immediate slaughter to have checked the spread of hog cholera which was affecting thousands of hogs in sixteen counties of the State. This quarantine which was ordered several weeks ago followed an investigation which showed that the herds which had been materially increased in the lower Susquehanna and the high valleys throughout the State were carrying the disease. There will probably be an abatement ordered before very long if the conditions continue satisfactory.

Many Berries—Pennsylvania will have no cause to complain of its small fruit crop this year, according to reports which have been coming to the State Department of Agriculture. In spite of weather conditions strawberry yields have been reported as large in many localities, although in some instances local conditions caused loss. Other small fruits are reported in good condition and in spite of some outbreaks of pests the general situation in the big apple and peach orchards is fair.

Big Merger Will Be Sanctioned Soon

Action will be taken by the Public Service Commission this week on one of the largest electric mergers presented to the commission in its history. The plan is to combine three companies operating in Centre, Clearfield, Indiana, Somerset and Cambria counties into a $6,750,000 corporation to be headed by H. D. Worlidge of New York, who organized the companies now operating in Harrisburg and other cities. The headquarters of the corporation which is to be known as the Penn Public Service Corporation will be in Johnstown and it will take over the Penn Electric Service, Penn Public Service and Citizens Light, Heat and Power of Pennsylvania companies. These concerns in turn control dozens of companies and boroughs in the counties. A few years ago numerous other companies covering half a dozen counties in the southwestern section of the State, while other mergers combined companies in Lawrence, Mercer, Crawford and Erie counties. Only lately twenty companies were merged with one of the Pittsburgh companies.

Chase of Woodchuck Leads to a Buried Ancient Indian Town

Auburn, June 9.—Digging for a woodchuck on the outskirts of a virgin forest near Cato to-day led to the discovery by Maynard A. Cramer, Auburn's city forester, of a buried prehistoric Indian village, which bids fair to prove the largest of the several which have been excavated during the past half century in the Finger Lakes Region of Central New York, once the most heavily populated by Indians of any equal area in North America. Bones were found a few inches below the surface of the ground and beneath these lay the skeletons of Indians, so determined by the shape of the skull. Led on by this weird find, Cramer, who is a member of the State Archaeological Association, excavated a large area, finding a mass of rare Indian relics in many "dumps."

For the first time in history, it is believed, disclosed both Algonquin and Iroquois occupancy of the same camp site. Hundreds of arrow heads, with bone awls, beads, knives, hammers, mortars or mauling stones, notched sinkers, ball hooks, picks cylindrical pestles, pipea and broken pottery were mingled in the masses of debris which lay beneath the moss of the forest. Beside one skeleton was charcoal, believed to have been used in thawing out the ground in winter that the Indian might be buried. It is estimated that the village was occupied about five centuries ago. Reports of the discovery were to-day sent to the state archaeologist who is expected to make further investigation of what the Finger Lakes Region, the home of the famous Six Nations, may hold for the historian.

Pictures New York Under Lenin's Rule

New York, June 9.—Picturing Russia under the Bolshevik as a land of paradoxes and contradictions, Fraser Hunt, war correspondent who returned to New York yesterday on the transport Von Steuben after making a report to Colonel House in Paris of his observations of several months spent in Russia, declared that Lenin was inclined to compromise with those opposed to him and would welcome a return of foreign capital. He described Russia as he left it a few weeks ago in the following words: "If you stop the New York street car lines and the subways, close up the Ritz and other fashionable hotels, change Deimonico's into a luncheon, board up three-quarters of the stores in Fifth avenue, shut down most of the factories, and work the others on half time, take away all the privately owned motor cars, fall to clean the streets for a week, charge $90 for a short quart of cheap liquor—then you have the present Bolshevik conditions transferred from Moscow to New York."

When Is a Waist a Blouse? Manufacturers Puzzled

New York, June 9.—A perplexing problem has arisen in the waist manufacturing trade. It has come about as the result of the movement started by the United Waist League of America for a "National Blouse Week," which is to begin November 10.

The problem centers on the question, "When is a waist not a waist and when is a blouse?" There is considerable discussion in the trade on this question. One manufacturer says if it costs $3 or less it's a waist, and if it costs more than $3 it is a blouse. This manufacturer made the point that he derived his solution to the problem from a prominent clothing manufacturer, who told him that the difference between "pants and trousers" is that the former cost less than $2 a pair, with no limit to the price of the latter.
