

PEACE TREATY, 100,000 WORDS, UP IN TWO HOURS

Government Printing Office Establishes New Record For Speed

By Associated Press.
Washington, June 10.—Establishing a new speed record, the government printing office, within two hours last night, set up in type the German peace treaty consisting of nearly 100,000 words.
As the treaty appears to-day, it covers sixty-four pages of the Congressional Record and cost the government $5,000 to print. Although Senate leaders plan to have the treaty printed in document form later, 35,000 copies of the record were printed for distribution among the regular recipients of that publication.

"IT DOES THE WORK" SAYS MRS. SCHOCH

Mrs. M. C. Schoch, 2045 Brandywine street, Philadelphia, tells of the great results that came to her husband. "His stomach and kidneys caused him to suffer, and his entire system was all run down. He suffered from pains across the back and in the stomach with belching of gas. He decided to try Tanlac and it brought him the results. Tanlac does the work it claims to do."

of the Senate, remarked that the authenticity of his treaty coup had been questioned, and that he would prove it by reading the document. Thereupon he began leisurely with the preamble of the big volume, reading of which probably would have taken fifteen hours.
The President's supporters objected that Mr. Borah was reading a confidential document against the Senate's rules, that he was breaking both precedent and rules by presenting a treaty at an open session and that he was exceeding his right by speaking too often on the same subject during the same debate.
But all these efforts to cut off the reading failed, and for an hour Mr. Borah read through the cumbersome preamble and into the first section of the treaty.
At last, however, conferences among the leaders brought a compromise by which unanimous consent was given to interrupt the reading, and vote on the reconsideration motion. It promptly was rejected, 42 to 24, opening the way to rush the treaty off to the government printing office to be put into type.

3,000 WOMEN OF PARIS DISAPPEAR DURING THE WAR

Famous Bluebeard Held For Dozen of Them Being Lost

Paris, June 10.—Landru, called by some French newspapers the "Bluebeard of Gambais," might take rank among the most celebrated of French criminals, if only a few of the suspicions against him were established. He was arrested a few weeks ago.

The disappearance of a round dozen of his "fiancées" is alleged. He is suspected in more than a hundred other cases by husbands whose spouses have deserted their firesides or by families that have lost track of relatives. The police consider most of the hundred additional cases as instances of disappearance that are common in Paris. A few of them present features similar to those of the dozen fiancées and detectives are investigating them.

Many Homes Wrecked

More than 3,000 women have been lost to sight in Paris during the war. This number is not regarded as extraordinary considering that such disappearances are common in Paris in normal times and that they have been particularly favored by conditions that have prevailed since the mobilization in 1914. A great many families have been broken up or scattered.

Soldiers returning from long absences some times have found their homes deserted and in several cases discovered that their wives believing them dead, have married again in good faith. In cases of deliberate desertion the unfaithful have, naturally, omitted to give their new addresses.

Kahn Warns Against European Alliance

Washington, June 10.—Opposition to President Wilson's proposal that England and the United States pledge themselves to go to the aid of France in case of German attack was expressed in the House by Representative Kahn, of California, chairman of the House Military committee, who recently returned from a stay of two months in Europe.

"If the League of Nations is to preserve the peace of the world," demanded Mr. Kahn, "why the necessity for additional separate alliances with France and England? The mere fact that such an alliance is asked for by those countries would indicate to me, at least, that they have not much confidence in the efficacy of the League as a war preventive. And if England, France and the United States can form a separate alliance, why cannot Germany, Russia and Japan also form an alliance?"

Mr. Kahn said that the United States should never enter an alliance with any European people because Americans had so few things in common with those across the ocean.

HUNTER SHOWS OPEN

Success marked the opening of the Harry C. Hunter Greater Shows at Third and Harris streets, last evening. It was estimated by one of the management that five thousand people were on the big lot during the evening.

Always of interest to the kiddies the merry-go-round and Ferris wheel came in for a goodly share of patronage. But there are many other attractions in addition which make their appeal both to young and old.

The wild animal show proved popular and also the museum of curiosities from the Far East. Then, too, there is the big ten-in-one show, underground Chinatown, still another giving a glimpse of the wild and woolly west, and athletic show, living freaks, etc.

With band concerts and free exhibitions as an added feature the showgrounds drew large crowds and the management was well pleased with the successful manner in which the big shows started their week's engagement in Harrisburg.
