ELsie Ferguson's new picture, "Eyes of the Soul," which is the bill at the Regent, three days, is a dramatic and light photoplay in which she has appeared this season. Gloria Swanson, Elsie Ferguson, while in Judge Malvin's auto, nearly runs down Larry E. Gibson, a blind soldier, in his wheelchair. The two meet frequently thereafter and Gloria falls in love with him. Judge Malvin, loving Gloria, alludes to her soldier as "the blind wreck," but the girl is not to be won over. When Larry's finances get low, Gloria, having a heart for them at the Palm Garden. The songs make a hit, and Larry signs a contract with the publisher of a starting life with Judge Malvin in a mansion. Gloria begins it with Larry on a boardinghouse. Both are happy. Larry is reconciled to the loss of his sight, for he sees through "the eyes of the soul."

The bill at the Paxtang Park theater for this week contains a program of vaudeville, featuring the vocal talents of George H. Bock, who is announced as America's premier ragtime xylophonist and musical entertainer. Mr. Bock plays all the real vaudeville houses and has any trouble in booking a return engagement with the best of them. If you like plenty of "hazz" and razzle-dazzle, he is the boy you want to hear. Who are the world's greatest "climbers"? It is a common fallacy to believe that the most daring and exciting part of aerial workers today are sailors. The jolly tars have always been more or less proud of their achievement in this line of endeavor. Re-The Hosiery Troupe, a spectacular revolving globe attraction, and the sensational headliners of the vaudeville stage, will also be at Paxtang this week, while Hart and Wagner, in their famous comedy talking stunt called, "Topics of the Day," are guaranteed to bring the smile of merriment to the face of the most confirmed pessimist.

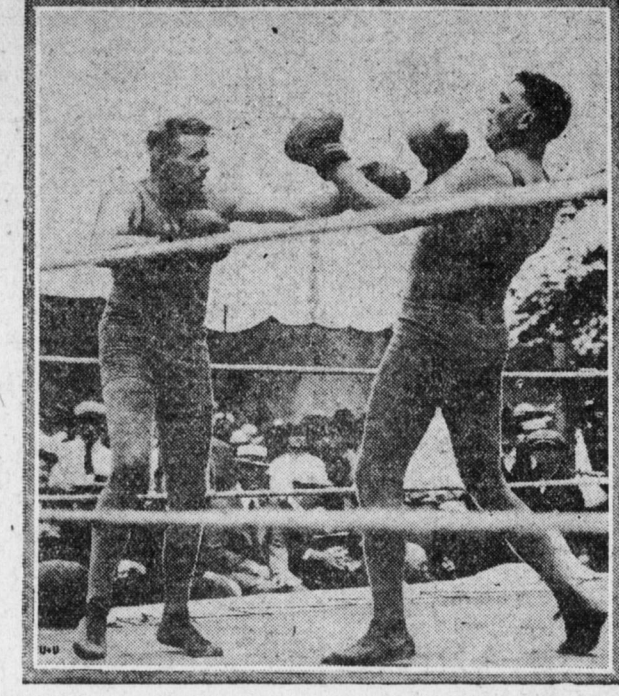

Other worthwhile acts that will be seen at the park theater this week are Fred Andrews in what is known as "The Wonder Act," Harry and Jane Platt in "Traveling in Harmony," however, some base landlubbers have managed to wedge themselves into a position before the public eye and rob the main who are the ragtime main of his laurels. These latter belong to a new class of aerial gymnasts, known as perch performers. A number of these daring perch performers are to be seen in this city for the first time when the new Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Combined Shows exhibit here Friday. The perch act number is one of the highest salaried features of the mammoth program. It includes such famous artists as the Mirano Brothers and the Weisse troupe. The performers, all of whom have been brought from European countries, perform their difficult feats from the tips of slender poles of great length and which are supported in a perpendicular position by the strength of one man who stands upon the ground. These remarkable men but suggest the newness and the novelty of the entire program. The introduction of America's two greatest amusement institutions has made possible the formation of a circus that is far bigger than has ever before been attempted. On its program are centralized all the world's foremost acrobats. A magnificent pageant, which opens the program is a stupendous feature. The superb managerie is made up of the finest animals of both circuses.

Klein Chocolate Lads Beat Altoona by Heavy Hitting A large crowd witnessed the bat-fest of the Klein team which secured 17 hits. Wrightstone and Wain led with three apiece, for which they will receive a box of Klein's almond bars on Wednesday, when Klein's lines up against the strong Quarryville team. It seems to be suicide for the visiting team to try to win based on that date, but Manager Brackenridge is authority for telling the public what will happen on that day at Newark, where the candy makers hold their annual convention: "As Elizabethtown is going to be represented in baseball there? Well, I should say so. The undepicted champs of the Klein Chocolate Company baseball team are going to be the one club. The other one the committee will not mention, but they got this far, that Manager Brackenridge of the Klein Chocolate Company team says he will put his club against the New York giants any time, so according to that, the Klein Chocolate Company team will have a good chance to win.

The Klein Chocolate Company team has won 7 games, lost 9—this season, and the attendance at the games is extra large, larger than some of our larger neighbor towns, which have 30,000 to 40,000 population. The drossy club spins ordinary railway travel and will make the trip in six-wheel motor cars, stopping off at Philadelphia June 21, to wrangle with the strong Strawbridge and Clothier nine. Up-to-Date Peek at Jess Willard Training

This photograph, just received from Toledo, shows Jess Willard training for his bout with Jack Dempsey. He is seen here boxing with Jack Dempsey, one of his sparring partners. The camera caught the heavyweight champion in one of his characteristic attitudes—leaning far back with his guard high.

Sad news for thousands of fans who intended reaching Toledo for the big fight in Pullman cars, and to-day an army of citizens were busy trying to arrange transportation via motor, for Walker D. Hines, director of railroads for Uncle Sam, canceled the plan for 70 special trains to carry the crowds, giving as the reason, the necessity of having all trains for the handling of 375,000 troops returning from abroad. It is believed that the Federal decision will also interfere with about 100 other fight excursions, planned from all part of the country. The 70 Pullman outfits were to tap exclusively New York and Philadelphia. The picture printed here to-day shows that Willard still has plenty of weight in the midsection, and the casual observer would certainly say that if the big fellow ever exposed as much opening as he does here he will be in the ring with a third fall. Latest word from the training quarters says that Willard is beginning to get a little tired of the grind. He loses his temper easily. This does not seem to alarm Tex Rickard, who says: "The old boy is getting ripe. He's drying out nicely. His nerves are raw and he is pretty near ready. Let him go along slowly now and he will be at concert pitch when he steps into the ring." "A boxer just before a fight for which he has trained faithfully is always irritable. I have never known one with a better disposition ordinarily than Jess Willard, but even he, as you see, must pay the penalty for stripping his nerves of the protection afforded by nature. "When flesh is reduced in weight until it has the consistency of leather, when long-continued exercises that dry the body so that perspiration is no longer profuse, when put to the test of heat and hard work, the boxer becomes sensitive beyond his ordinary condition. His nerves tremble, Barrett. He is into unaccountable rages. That is the way with Jess now. Dempsey has been on edge for some time."

YOUNG MAHONEY HURT POSTPONES BOXING BOUTS

Joe Barrett, the Steelton boxing promoter, says he is surely in the hands of the jinx, and is wondering whether luck will change. Several weeks ago he billed ten-round bouts here with Lew Tendler and Tender pulled one over on the veteran, but not being a quitter, Joe engaged in this section. He had had a show booked that was a hummer from a local point of view, as four of Harrisburg's best boxers were on the card, against a like number of the best in this section. The card included Sammy Schiff, in the feature bout of ten rounds against Young Mahoney, the fast Baltimorean; Young (Full Dog) Silar in the semi-windup with Nate Isaacman, a local favorite; Billy Morton, the hard-hitting lightweight of this city, with Paul Wagner, of York, and Billy Adicks of this city, in the feature bout of ten rounds against Joe thought and had reasons to think, that every thing would be clear sailing to-night. The first jolt he got was while at Union Station Saturday, mailing transportation to the outside boxers. Crossing the plaza between two teams Barrett was kicked on the right side of the leg by a horse of huge dimensions which partly put him out of business. Following this, when Joe returned to Steelton an hour later, he received a telegram notifying him that Mahoney wrenched his arm in a battle Friday night in Baltimore in his fight with Joe Marks, and was compelled to quit and, of course, the Baltimorean could not fulfill his contract to box Schiff. Manager Max Waxman stated he would send Young Gilly, the southern lightweight, to challenge Mahoney's place on the card. Barrett then lost no time getting in touch with Schiff and tried to persuade the loathsome boy to meet Gilly. Schiff refused. Barrett says he will now put in two other boxers, and to show just how good the man is that Schiff refused to meet he arranged to have Gilly make his home in Steelton in the future, and has matched him with Tim Droncy, the Lancaster fighter, to meet the southerner in his show next Monday night in a ten-round bout. To-night's show was called off but the same preliminaries will compete in next week's show, provided Nate Isaacman will box Young Silar that night. If not then Frankie Erno, of Lancaster, will be Silar's opponent, as Droncy and Erno both train at Erno's school of physical culture. This feature event, Gilly and Droncy, Barrett has without doubt is the best arranged between lightweights ever held in this section. Gilly has had 107 bouts, and lost seven decisions and has never been on the floor in all his career. Jimmy McCabe, who recently beat Jack Britton, Danny Ridge, who held Benny Leonard down for ten rounds, Pete Harney, the durable Dan, and many other top notchers are among Gilly's victims. Droncy, like Gilly, is a seasoned boxer; in the past two months he boxed Allentown Dundee a draw, and beat Whitey Fitzgerald, in Philadelphia and also gave a sound thrashing to Eddie McAnreus. Gilly went the rounds of the paper offices last night and was not under the collar before he left for Baltimore, where he will pack up his belongings, and come back to Steelton, where he will make his future home, and get into conok under Barrett's care to meet any man in the world who can make 133 pounds.

"NATONEX WENT RIGHT TO WORK REGULATING MY ENTIRE SYSTEM"

"You certainly have a wonderful medicine in Natonex. I have had better results from it by far than from any of the many medicines I have taken. In fact, this is the first time I have ever gotten entirely satisfactory results from a medicine. This was the statement of Charles L. Peck, of 876 South Main street, Wilkes-Barre. To those who do not fully understand how Natonex is designed to purify the entire system—stomach, liver, kidneys, and intestines—by combining the twelve best proved Nature remedies, all having special narrative value for one of the vital organs, Mr. Peck's statement will seem remarkable. "My system was all out of order," this Wilkes-Barre man said. "In the first place, I was subject to indigestion. Besides, my liver was sluggish and my bowels inactive. I also had kidney trouble, and my system was full of uric acid which caused rheumatism in my back, arms and legs. "I was pale and had little energy. My blood circulation was poor and my condition kept me from resting like I should. Natonex is specially introduced and explained by the Natonex Representative at the Gorgas Drug Store, 16 North Third Street. To meet the great demand, Natonex is now sold by these leading druggists. Greenacres—Chas. B. Carl, Hanover—H. C. Baughman, Milton—E. L. Kelsch, Mt. Union—J. M. Minick, Northumberland—Shingler.
