Coroner's Jury's Unable to Fix the Blame For Fatal Auto Accident

Responsibility for the crash between an Army truck and Harrisburg Railways car at Second and North streets last Saturday, resulting in the death of one convalescent soldier and the wounding of almost a score of others, was left undetermined by a coroner's jury impaneled last evening by Coroner Jacob Eckinger.

Six men served on the jury as follows: J. H. Wallaz, A. S. Speece, E. W. Speece, E. E. Rapp, H. G. Hess and I. J. Grove.

The decision presented by them is: "It is our opinion that the testimony in this case is so conflicting that it is beyond us to determine definitely the responsibility of the accident. Higher Colleges Needed

"With the world in ferment," Mr. Hughes went on, "we are appraising the steadying and conserving influences and we look to the universities for something more than the discharge of its primary and distinctive function in instruction."

Must Respect Government

"Democracy demands loyal acceptance of the determinations of the majority but the majority to which it requires obedience is that of free citizens of equal political privilege. It demands respect for its own institutions as such. If they function imperfectly, strive for their improvement.
