DAUPHIN WOMAN SO TIRED SHE COULD NOT HELP BUT CRY

"I suffered from what I took to be nervous indigestion," said Mrs. Louise Saunders of Dauphin, Pa. "My meals distressed me so that very often after eating I would become nauseated. I was so nervous that the least little thing would startle me, and I would be weak for hours after being frightened. I could not rest at night and I would be so tired in the morning I would have an almost uncontrollable desire to cry. And very often I did cry. I just could not help it. I decided I would take Natonek for my condition after I had read of so many people who had been helped. I saw the Nature remedies in Natonek and I knew it could not hurt anyone. I took Natonek for several days and saw that I was somewhat upset. I followed the instructions and rested one day and then began Natonek again. It was just like housecleaning. If you try to clean everything at once you get no-

WOMAN INJURED BY LIGHTNING

Barns Damaged and Livestock Killed During Storm in York County

Mt. Wolf, Pa., June 23.—A woman was injured, three head of livestock killed and three buildings were struck by bolts of lightning, two being damaged by fire, during the storm which passed over York county on Friday evening. Corn and wheat were beaten down by the rain and wind. Many telephone lines were entirely out of service, particularly in the southern part of the county. The barn of Daniel Shaffer, both were struck by lightning, fire ensuing, which, however, did but little damage. The frame cigar factory of T. R. Trout, at Jacobus, was badly damaged by a bolt which splintered rafters and tore portions of the roof away.

Mrs. Lizzie Wolf, near Glen Rock, while standing in the doorway at her home, with a needle in her hand, was struck by a bolt, which threw her against the porch railing. A horse owned by Roland Warner, was killed, while Emory Lutenbaugh, of Iron Ridge, sustained the loss of two valuable thoroughbred cows.
