

NOTICE CLAUSE IS EMPHASIZED Important Decision Is Rendered in the Dauphin County Claim

The importance of prompt notice of injury in compensation cases is illustrated in the decision of the State Compensation Board in the claim of Sevilla Radle, near Valley Forge, against the Susquehanna Coal Co., Wilkes-Barre. The husband of the claimant while working in a mine cut himself on a mining machine and when another employe entered the chamber to borrow it he called attention to the injury. The opinion which allows compensation says that the deceased told his wife the circumstances and "the same statement was made by the deceased to his son and to his physician. The evidence establishes that the deceased died as the result of blood poisoning which followed as a direct consequence of his injury."

In Pusey vs. Pennsylvania Railroad a Philadelphia case, where deceased was struck by a rim of headlight, it is stated that the company had "actual notice of the injury" and that the married died as a result of injury to his brain by the accident. The opinion notes that when he returned to work he appeared to be dull in mind and was reduced in rank and then finally discharged, dying four months later. Compensation is awarded on the ground that death was due to the injury suffered nine months before death. Compensation is upheld in Gracie vs. North American Co., Philadelphia, wherein death was due to a blow struck in a quarrel between employes when one asked another to stand out of the light. The claimant in this case is held to be in the same position as though she were claiming compensation for the death of her husband because of an injury suffered by him in the course of his employment caused by a break in machinery. A rehearing is ordered in McDevitt vs. Chester Shipbuilding Co. New Companies—Three Dauphin county corporations have just been granted State charters. The Philadelphia Manufacturing Company, of Harrisburg, operating motion picture theaters, was incorporated with a capital stock of $5,000. J. M. Lenney, Jr., is treasurer, and he, with J. M. Lenney and J. E. Gipple, are the incorporators. The Pennsylvania Soda Cola Company, Harrisburg, was incorporated with a capital of $6,000. The incorporators are Horace M. Witman, W. Frank Witman and E. G. Courley, all of this city, and John A. Smith, Steelton. The third company is the Gordon Limestone Company of Hershey. H. I. Miller is the treasurer and the capital stock is $5,000. The incorporators are H. I. Miller, David Gordon, David Gordon, Jr., and George G. Gordon, all of Hershey.

The commission will take his place as chairman of the commission which will have plans made in co-operation with New Jersey.

McGrann Place Rented—The McGrann place near Lancaster has been rented by the State for the training of Troop E, to be stationed here. The recruitment of men will start at once, preference being given to overseas men. The McGrann place will be used while the barracks are being built here.

Courts Not Censors—In an opinion in the Supreme Court Judge John Stewart reversed Philadelphia Common Pleas courts in the moving picture censor appeal, saying that the Board of Censors had been given the authority of the State and should be upheld. At the same time he held that films dealing with Alaskan life, for instance, must be judged by Pennsylvania standards and not those of other places.

Loomis Case Goes Over—In the case of Robert M. Loomis, convicted of murdering a woman in Easton, the Supreme Court yesterday granted a rule to show cause why the non pros of the appeal in the higher court should not be taken, and the appeal of Loomis from his conviction reinstated, all the proceedings in the matter of the execution of Loomis to be stayed until the further order of the court. The rule was made returnable to the Supreme Court of Pittsburgh on September 4. In the petition for the rule it was stated that Loomis was convicted on the testimony of Charles M. Shrove, a co-defendant, who is now a raving lunatic confined in prison in Easton.

Carlisle, Pa., June 23.—After a careful consideration of the cases and investigation lasting until late Saturday, a jury called by Coroner Deardorff to consider the case of George Fromm, a Carlisle mechanic, killed when he leaped in front of a train on the Cumberland Valley railroad on Friday evening, returned a verdict of accidental death and absolved the train crew and engineer from blame.

It was brought out in the investigation that he had had some trouble with a woman here over the question of her entertaining soldiers, had attacked her and she had him arrested. He was to have been given a hearing on the evening he jumped in front of the train but did not show up. He had planned the attempt according to witnesses who saw him some minutes before the arrival of the train hide behind a pile of lumber and then jump out to meet death.
