

Gifts and Greetings For Mrs. F. E. Commings

The birthday of Mrs. Frank E. Commings, North Fourth street, was happily celebrated with a dinner party Saturday, June 21. As June is the month of roses, the decorations were of pink and white with roses used exclusively as the flowers. The handsomely decorated birthday cake, bore the age of the hostess in pink candles. From four corners of the dome hung pink bask-

kets of roses and fern, caught with pink ribbons. Ribbons of the same color formed a border around the table. The family, relatives and a few intimate friends enjoyed the occasion. Mrs. Commings was the recipient of many gifts and cards of greeting.

SUMMER WEDDING IN THE CHURCH

Many Friends of Miss Dora Coe and Herbert Wallower Attend the Ceremony

St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church, quaintly built of brownstone, in a plot of a lawn bordered by shrubbery and flowers, made a beautiful setting for the real summer wedding of Miss Dora Wickham Coe and Lieutenant Herbert Hoover Wallower, at noon today. The bridal party passed from the street to the church through terraces of Duchess of Marlborough roses with here and there large clumps of blue larkspur. The decorative scheme inside carried out suggestions of blue tinged with yellow. Long sprays of roses carried from the ceiling to the side walls gave a widening effect to the little church and near the corners were bunches of white flowers. The approach of the summer-time, with pink larkspur and daisies in relief. The altar was banked with An-nunciation lilies and the choir stalls and chancel done in tall, nodding delphinium. All the decorations were by Fred Leary of the Ritz-Carlton, Mrs. Stotesbury's florist, were in the style of the French Renaissance.

MARRIED TODAY AT HIGH NOON

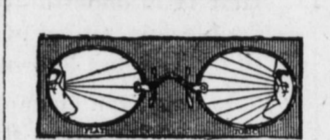

Miss Marian E. Martz Becomes Bride of Prominent Young Insurance Man

A pretty summer wedding was solemnized today at high noon in St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, when Miss Marian Elizabeth Martz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant A. Martz, Cottage Ridge, and Frederick Bowman Dapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Dapp, of the Dapp apartments, were united in marriage, the Rev. E. E. Snyder officiating. A most impressive incident occurred at the last of the prelude, played by Miss Clarissa Stence, died away and from the distance hidden voices softly struck the hour. As they ceased the strains from the Lohengrin "Bridal Chorus" were heard, and the bridal party entered the church. The bride wore a dark blue traveling suit and black tulle turban trimmed with ostrich. Her corsage was of orchids. The bride, who is one of the city's most popular girls, is a graduate of Central High school, class of 1915, and of the National School of Expression, Philadelphia. She also attended Wilson College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Harrisburg Academy and of Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg. Bishop Officiates The ceremony was performed by Bishop Frank Du Moulin of Toledo, Ohio, assisted by the rector of St. Paul's, the Rev. Dr. Floyd Appleton. Prior to the service, Newell Al-bright, played "The Marriage Mass" by Theodore Dubois, running into the "Lohengrin" Bridal Chorus. Wagner, as a professional for the wedding party. During the ceremony, Merrill Shepherd, a boy soprano, sang "O, Perfect Love" and Mr. Albright used the brilliant wedding music of Mendelssohn as a recessional. The stately bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Sanford DeWitt Coe wore an exquisite bridal toilette of white satin cut decollete with draped skirt and bodice completed with a broad "cuff" of old Duchesse lace. Above the lace there was cloth of silver and tulle over the shoulders falling into a sheer Bishop sleeve edged with the same lace. The full court train of tulle was covered with Duchesse and rose-point, the long tulle veil lace bordered, extending from a close cap of Duchesse crowned with a semi-wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a petite French bouquet of valley lilies and rare white orchids.

In Bridal Party The attendants were the bride's cousin, Mrs. E. Winslow Williams of New York, remembered here as Miss Leavitt Wickersham of Lancaster, and Miss Dorothy Wallower, the bridegroom's sister. Both wore simple Georgette crepe frocks of yellow, with tight, draped skirts and trimmings of fallie ribbons. The apron effect in front was done by smoky flat bows of yellow, and collars were outlined in the same fashion. Soft Georgette girdles ended in large sash bows of ribbon tied at the waist. These costumes were completed by blue tulle picture hats with large bows at the back and small bows tied under the chin. They carried sheaves of cornflowers and wheat tied with streamers of blue tulle.

Jere D. Eggleston of Meriden, Conn., was best man and the ushers included: Lieutenant Charles H. Chandler, Jr., of Harrisburg, Va., and Captain William J. Calder, wearing their army uniforms; Archibald G. Knisely, Jr., of this city and John D. McLanahan of Princeton, N. J., wearing serge suits with sack coats and boutonnières of bachelor's buttons. Breakfast in Club Following the church services a wedding breakfast was served in the Civic Club where most of Harrisburg society gathered to shower the young couple with good wishes. The interior and porches of the beautiful clubhouse along the river, was filled with summer flowers and foliage arranged by friends of the bride. The Soubrier orchestra played and Augustin of Philadelphia catered. A wedding journey East, for which the bride is wearing a blue serge traveling suit smartly tailored, with Eton jacket, tan linen vest and small tricorn hat of tan feathers, will be followed by a residence in Joplin, Mo., where Lieutenant Wallower, a mining engineer, is interested with his father and brothers in zinc and lead mines.

The bride, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford DeWitt Coe of 2017 North Second street, was educated at the Seller school, finishing at Mrs. Dow's school at Briar-Cliff Manor, on-the-Hudson. She has been most active in war work, and served as office secretary for the local Red Cross. Lieutenant Wallower was a student at both Cornell and Princeton Universities following his graduation from the Lawrenceville Academy. He has recently returned from overseas, where he first served with the French Canton Service, later receiving a commission from the American Army where he was connected with the 74th Engineers. He was in the thick of a great offensive and commanded a British unit when many of their officers were killed. Lieutenant Wallower has received his discharge and entered into civil work again.
