Three Tables Hold Pacts

Three Tables Hold Pacts
Last minute changes were made in the program to expedite the signing of the Treaty. Two additional tables were placed beside the one within the historic Hall of Mirrors on which the Peace Treaty was laid. One of the new tables held the Rhine convention and the other the protocol containing changes in and interpretations of the Treaty.

All these documents had to be signed by each plenipotentiary, and the arrangements of the tables thus enabled three persons to be engaged s'multaneously in affixing their signatures. Because of the size of the Treaty and the fragile seals it bore, the plan to present it for signing to Premier Clemenceau. President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George could not be carried out, the new plan being for the three conference leaders to step to table? to affix their signatures.

A few minutes before 3 o'clock fifteen enlisted men from the American. British and French armies entered the Hall of Mirrors amid decorous cheers. The Chinese delegates, shortly before the hour set for the signing of the Treaty, reiterated their intention not to sign. President Wilson entered the hall at exactly 3 o'clock. Premier Clemenceau called the session to order at 3.10 o'clock.

Endless Stream of Autos
Hours before the time set for the ceremony an endless stream of automobiles began moving up the cannon-lined hill of the Champs Elysees, past are Arc de Triumphe and out through the shady Bois de Bologne, carrying the plenipotentianies, officials and guests to the ceremony. The thoroughfare was kept clear by pickets, dragoons and gendarmes.

In the meantime thousands of Parisians were packing the regular and special trains upon the lines leading to Versailles and contending with the residents of the town itself for places on the park where the play of the famed fountains of Versailles would mark the end of the ceremony.
