JESS WILLARD MARKETS HIS CARCASS FOR A BIG BUNCH OF MONEY

Rich, fat, crafty old Jess Willard! Didn't he put it over on 'em! Ho, ho, ho! That was the monster of all frascos put upon the American public...

Inability to hit Ray Wertz and 'Buck' Gilday, coupled with a decided lack of life, especially in the afternoon...

Newport Homers Count. Three home runs were responsible to a large extent for Marysville's defeat in the morning at Newport.

While Biever's shoots were being hit hard, 'Lefty' Wertz held Marysville helpless. In only one instance did Marysville get a runner as far as third base.

The game was a nip and tuck affair until the seventh, when Newport drove in four tallies. Marysville had been playing a lifeless game since the first inning when they had scored three runs off Gilday.

him and his shrewd manager to coax Willard into the ring to loosen the title from him. 'Say, did you notice how Jess buttons his vest from the bottom up instead of down?' the manager would whisper to a trained writer for the press.

Details of the Fight

Dempsey appeared in the ring at 3:55 o'clock and Willard a minute later. At nine minutes after four the weak gong clanged and the battle was on.

Round 1.—Willard loomed up like a Goliath against his five-inch shorter David and opened the engagement by bumping his long left twice into Dempsey's face with force enough to make the latter blink.

Round 2.—Willard appeared to be in a bad way. He managed to snap a left to Dempsey's face and a puny right uppercut to the chin. Dempsey replied with several body drives and Willard fell partly through the ropes.

Round 3.—The final session was simply a series of rapid fire swings, which fell on Willard's face and body. Dempsey completely helpless. Blood bubbled from his mouth with every gasp for breath.

Round 4.—The referee began to yell. Just as the bell rang and Willard collapsed in his chair, he spat out a tooth. As he lay looting from side to side his chin was being worked over by Dempsey's fists.

On Tuesday evening the Klein Chocolate Company team will play the pick of the Allison Hill League. This game is of special interest because of the championship claims made by the Klein team.

RIVER BLAZES WHEN ADMIRAL GEORGE RIEST PRESSES THE BUTTON

The old Susquehanna was a gay gathering place last night for hundreds of Harrisburgers and visitors who patronized the Municipal Port at the foot of South street where George Riest now has opened four huge crafts to house canoes and accommodate swimmers.

This place is a real boon to thousands who desire to take advantage of swimming, sculling, motor boating and canoe paddling. There was no formal opening last night beyond furnishing one big dock with thrir quenching soft drinks and the turning on of a fine system of many colored lights which gleam out far and wide over the lovely basin and make a merry haven to voyagers up and down the wide river.

It looked like Kipona last evening with every canoe abroad, accompanied by the tinkle of guitar and the little player machines; and the big crowd which occupied the deck looking on indicates what may be expected as the Municipal Port becomes better known.

HERESAY EVIDENCE. 'You know, of course, that George Washington never told a lie,' said a teacher to a pupil. 'No,' answered the pupil. 'I don't know it. I've heard it.'—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WILLARD'S WIFE COMFORTS HIM

Says She's Glad He Is no Longer Champion, Though Sorry to See Him Beaten

By Associated Press.

Toledo, Ohio, July 5.—There is one woman in Toledo to-night happy because Jess Willard is no longer world's heavyweight champion. She is the wife of the vanquished titleholder, and mother of his five children.

When the bruised and battered giant of the ring was brought to the home he had occupied in Toledo, Mrs. Willard was there, and with her care for his wounds. She put him on a davenport and sat at his side, applying soothing iced cloths to his closed eye.

'I am sorry that Jess was beaten, but I can truthfully say I am happy that he's no longer champion,' Mrs. Willard said. 'It means, now, that I shall be able to have my eyes. Jess will become a private citizen again. It was the second boxing contest I had ever witnessed and I do not want to witness any more. I shall be happy when you take Jess back home to our children.'

'That was the blow that started me in defeat,' Willard said. 'I felt physically closed. Dempsey my head wasn't clear and my eyes were closed and I realized it would have been useless for me to attempt to box while half blinded.'

'Dempsey is a reasonable fighter. It was the first time that I had ever been knocked off my feet. I have seen many 'birds' home in the same brutal condition that I am in and now I know how they felt. I sincerely wish Dempsey all of the luck possible and hope that he garners the riches that go with the championship. I was champion for four years. And I want to assure you that they'll never have to give a benefit for me. I have invested the money I have made.'

The blow referred to by Willard was struck in the first round. The gong alone saved Willard from defeat in this round, for with swollen cheeks, right eye closed, Dempsey knocked him down or threw him helpless against the ropes seven times.

DOUSE THE GLIM OR GO. 'That young man stayed very late again, Edith.' 'Yes, papa. I was showing him my picture postcards.' 'Well, the next time he wants to stay late, you show him some of my electric light bills.'—Boston Transcript.
