For a minute Virginia remained perfectly silent. It seemed to me that I could hear my own words echoing on the air:

"Neal's in a sort of partnership with Pat Dalton and Carlotta Sturges."

Believing as I did that Virginia still loved Pat, my heart ached with the recoil of the blow I had dealt her. This alliance of my brother with Virginia's husband must assuredly embitter her—but not as much as would Pat's association with Carlotta Sturges. But whatever the struggle that went on she gave me no trace of it when she turned her pale face and impenetrable eyes to me and said in a flat, colorless voice:

"My dear Anne, your brother's business arrangements are nothing to me. I promise you I shall not stay away from his reception on that account—and subject you or Jim to surmise and what will be its great crush like that will be its very easy to avoid people one doesn't want to see."

In my heart I knew that Virginia wouldn't spare herself. It was useless to ask her to help. I was left with the task of my last effort:

"With all our family complications don't you think Phoebe might refuse?"

"Please, Anne," interrupted Virginia in a tone of finality, "leave this to me. I want Phoebe to meet the Mason set. It was our set when Jim and I were young. If Jim's success continues it ought to be yours soon."

"There was nothing more to be said."

The rest of our time together was given to surface discussions that elaborately skirted everything real. After luncheon we went our separate ways with a return of the old feeling of estrangement. Later, when I went to keep my appointment with Phoebe, Amanda, the maid, told me Miss Phoebe had been compelled to go out on a most important matter. I wondered what it could be. It wasn't so very long ago that she had bemoaned her lack of friends. I went away feeling snubbed and had to call my sense of humor to aid me. It looked as if I couldn't contrive to be on good terms with Jim and his sisters at the same time.

For the next few days Phoebe seemed bent on avoiding me. And as Jim changed the subject whenever I mentioned his sisters I conquered my longing to manage and help and forced myself to wait. So gurgled that Jim was a perfect host and the new club was the smartest place in town and a fox-trot with her Neal and a waltz with Jimmie would make her evening perfect! Neal doesn't waltz, but I didn't begrudge Evvy the waltz with Jim that gave me a chance to talk to my brother.

"Happy, lad?" I asked, eager to surprise the truth from Neal.

"It's been a wonderful evening," he countered.

"Oh, Neal—tell Babsie," I persisted. "I want to help you. I know you're not happy and I want to help you to be."

Neal turned to me with young dignity that was amazing. I knew that he was going to bar me out from his heart, perhaps even to reproach me for trying to force my way where I had never before been refused admittance. But on the verge of speech, he controlled himself and leaped to his feet.

At that moment, I felt a plump, cushiony hand slide down my arm to take my hand and I looked up to see a little pouter-pigeon of a woman hung in jewels. Mechanically I smiled and spoke a word of greeting trying vainly to place my visitor.

"Why Mrs. Harrison," she exclaimed. "Don't you know me?"

BOLSHEVIKS WORK IN AFGHANISTAN

British Officials Believe Them Responsible For Up-rising There

London, July 7.—British government officials are convinced that the uprising in Afghanistan, is being fostered by the Russian Bolsheviki. It is stated that the government has positive information that the Amir is in close touch with the Bolsheviki in Turkestan and Moscow and that Russian emissaries have been sent to Afghanistan.

It is believed here that the Amir is delaying answering armistice terms which he requested until he can further concentrate his forces, stir up more trouble among frontier tribes and get assistance either in the form of propaganda or money from Russia.

Recent successes of the Bolsheviki in Trans-Caucasia are regarded with apprehension and as likely to impress the Afghans.

The Bolsheviki aspirations undoubtedly are two-fold. Official opinion here is that they hope through this method to spread their doctrine among the people of the near East thereby widening their influence and embarrassing the United Kingdom.

Awarded the Cross of St. George Medal

New York, July 7.—Ralph Albertson, of New York for many months a Y. M. C. A. worker in the Archangel area of northwestern European Russia, has been awarded the Cross of St. George medal by the commandant of the Russian forces there upon recommendation of the British military staff, for remaining behind to aid hospital patients when the allied forces evacuated Shenkursk and the Bolsheviki captured the town. He is fifty-three years of age.

At the time Shenkursk was evacuated, Albertson aided doctors and others in getting ninety-six wounded men to places of safety even preparing a meal for them during the hurried exodus, necessitated by the bombardment of the Bolsheviki.

The wounded in Shenkursk had given up all hope of being taken out of the attacked city alive, and according to reports, regarded Albertson as organizer of the party which saved their lives.

Make Your Own Coffee at the Table

You Need Not Bother With a Coffee Pot

How much more convenient it would be if you could make coffee right at the table. Think of the time gained, the steps saved, the extra bother and fuss eliminated!

All this is possible—if you use Hires Instant Soluble Coffee. This was first made for our soldiers in France, who required good coffee that could be easily made. And so thoroughly did Hires Instant Soluble Coffee meet every requirement, 48-2 per cent. of all the coffee contracted for by the American Army, in the trenches, was Hires. We could not supply more because our facilities would not permit.

Hires Instant Soluble Coffee is the dried pure juice of carefully selected coffee beans of Java and Mocha blend. This clear, aromatic juice is merely converted into a powdered soluble form. The minute you add hot water you have your coffee as originally made. And if you prefer your coffee you can have it, for Hires Instant Soluble Coffee dissolves instantly in ice water.

And Hires Instant Soluble Coffee is the concentrated juice of the coffee bean, for by an exclusive process twice as much juice is taken from the coffee bean as is secured by the use of the coffee pot or percolator.

Because Hires Instant Soluble Coffee is so easy to make you can make it right at the table, or can have a clear, fragrant cup any hour of the day or night.

A small can of Hires Instant Soluble Coffee is equivalent to a pound of the best Mocha and Java coffee. The low price is due to the fact that with our exclusive process we extract 100 per cent. of the juice from the bean than you can in making coffee in the old way. Get it at all stores.
