

MOYER ADMITS BANK SHORTAGE

Fails to Say Who Got $900,000 From North Penn Bank

Philadelphia, July 23.—What became of the $900,000 that has faded away from the North Penn Bank, which closed its doors last Friday is the big question that is facing the State banking officials who are investigating the affairs of the institution. Ralph T. Moyer, the cashier, who was arrested yesterday in connection with the failure and held in $25,000 bail, for a hearing next Tuesday, has admitted the North Penn is $900,000 short, according to State Banking Commissioner John S. Fisher, but he has failed thus far to inform the State officials who got the money.

for making false reports of the bank's condition, receiving deposits when he knew the bank was insolvent, embezzlement, abstraction and willful appropriation to the use of other persons and companies of money, securities and property belonging to the bank and money, securities and property left with the bank as special deposits, pledging, and rehypothecating stocks, bonds and securities received by the bank as security for money lent and borrowed without the consent of the parties pledging it, and destroying and falsifying the books and securities of the bank.

Other Arrests Probable Other arrests are hinted at, but State officials refuse to discuss whether any other persons will be criminally involved. Directors and stockholders willing to talk said they were not aware of the true condition of the bank until the crash came. The North Penn was what is known in banking circles as a "one-man bank." Moyer, on a salary of $3,000, attended to all its affairs, according to his brother and no one else knew much about the affairs of the institution.

State officials say there were large over-extensions of loans and the amount of overdrafts found, according to James W. MacBurney, the receiver, were large. State Banking Commissioner Fisher announced that a thorough investigation of all the bank's loans will be made and that quick action will be taken in every case where any irregularities are found.

RODMAN SPEEDS UP HIS FLEET

Plans to Have Warships at Panama by Tomorrow

Aboard Flasher U. S. S. New Mexico, Monday, July 21.—Admiral Rodman has issued orders to increase the speed of the Pacific fleet so that it will arrive at Panama on the morning of July 25, when the first dreadnought in the history of the waterway will negotiate the canal.

While the fleet was wheeling into single column formation Saturday night, civilians on board the New Mexico were startled to see the Mississippi bearing down on the starboard quarter of the flagship. To the untrained eye a collision of two dreadnoughts at sea seemed inevitable. The New Mexico was quickly veered to starboard, and the Mississippi swept clear of her stern by what seemed a matter of feet.

His attitude in the tense situation was instantly reflected by the ship's officers and crew. "Now I know why Admiral Rodman was selected to command the sixth battle squadron of the British fleet in the Philippines in the ring of the Philippines ball park last Monday night. After boxing six slashing rounds with three sparring partners, two rounds each, yesterday afternoon, Fox inadvertently disclosed his plan of battle against the featherweight king.

Time was called for the last round. Fox proceeded to take off his gloves and in answer to a question as to how he was going to fight, he said: "You saw how I tore into those fellows, didn't you? That's the way I'm going to fight Kilbane. He realizes that he has something on me in the way of cleverness at long range and I'm going to keep him on top of him all the time." A warning look from Johnny Mooney, his manager, caused the English featherweight champion to close up and not another word would he say as to his plan of battle.

Kilbane will arrive from Cleveland to-day. He is training at his home and at Jimmy Dunn's gymnasium in Cleveland and together with Cal Delaney, his sparring partner, who meets Joe Welsh on the same bill, and Jimmy Dunn, his manager, will leave Cleveland for Philadelphia to-night.

Kill Each Other in Duel Over Cow Herd Lexington, Ky., July 23.—William Lear, constable of the Yates Magisterial district, and Samuel Hill, a farmer, were killed in a pistol duel which took place between the two men at Bearwallow, Madison county, yesterday. Hill, while lying on the ground mortally wounded, fired the shot which resulted in the death of Lear several weeks later. Hill died almost instantly. The tragedy is said to have resulted from the efforts of Lear to keep Hill's stock from running at large.
