NICHOLS SETS PACE ON LINKS

Covers Course in Par 70 at Practice; Leads Western Golfers

Cleveland, Ohio, July 23.—Excellent golf was played in practice over the course of the Mayfield Country Club by the veterans of the Western open golf championship, the chief honors going to Gill Nichols, of New York, who scored a par 70, including an eagle on one of the 700-yard thirteenth hole. Driving on a high parapet tee to a narrow green surrounded by the yawning bunkers, the veteran dropped a beautiful iron shot just short of the 44-inch cup and the ball trickled in.

Others who equaled par were Emmett French, of York, Pa., and Jack Sturges, of Nashville, Tenn. Willie Kidd, of St. Louis, displayed some spectacular golf, scoring a 22 on one nine. James Barnes, of St. Louis, titleholder, did not play the full round today, but did play the last tournament at Westmoreland in 1917, scored 73, while Jack Hutchinson, of Chicago, who finished third two years ago, took 74.

Among the late entries are Tom McNamara and Tom Kerigan, of New York; Leo Diegel and Roy Kober, of Detroit; Alex Cunningham, of Wheeling, W. Va., and Jack Barry, of Grand Rapids.

Word came that Charles Hoefner, of Philadelphia, would be unable to play and Mike Brady, of Boston, failed to appear, but aside from these two professionals and Francis Outner and Chick Evans, amateurs, the field includes all those who finished among the first twenty in the national open tournament in Boston, and contains a number who were unable to compete in that event.

The course record for the Mayfield links, which is severely trapped and undulating through fairways, in competition, is 69, set by Ned Sawyer, of New York, on July 1, 1917. This figure was bettered yesterday by Otto Hackbart, of Cincinnati, who scored 68, but did not use all the back tees.

Seek Tennis Experts Who Know All About Rules

New York, July 23.—Questionnaires will be sent to 600 members of the National Umpires' Association in an endeavor to secure 150 officials to act as umpires, foot-ball judges and line-men at the national tournament which is to be played at the West Side Tennis Club beginning August 25. More than thirty courts will be in use during the first three days of play.

Of the 600 members of the Umpires' Association, more than 150 reside in the New York district. It is expected that the majority of the officials will be from this vicinity.

The number of officials needed will be reduced each day as the rounds progress. This is the first year that this method of choosing officials has been used. Last year most of the officials were from the West Side Tennis Club.

AMBULANCES DID GOOD IN ITALY

Two of Three Cars Given by Traphooters Carried Many Thousands of Patients

[By Peter P. Carney.]
Traphooters in general will be glad to learn of the great good accomplished by the ambulances donated by the American Amateur Traphooters Association to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Three three-quarter ton G. M. C. ambulances, fully equipped, were purchased by the traphooting fraternity and presented to the A. E. F. in August, 1917. The drivers of two of these cars are once more on native soil, bringing with them the brass plates which were fastened to the cars, telling the why and wherefore of the ambulance and the history of the work done by the ambulances.

The drivers are J. W. Hay, of Sanderson, Texas, and Arthur E. Fraser, of Philadelphia, both connected with Section 596 of the United States Army Ambulance Service, assigned to the Italian Army by the A. E. F.

The drivers arrived at Genoa, Italy, on June 27, 1918, and the ambulance was assembled at that port that week. They entered service August 7. Hay's ambulance, No. 79,490, was with the Sixth Italian Army from August 7 to September 23. During this time front-line work, over roads that were under shellfire at all times, was carried on. The Sixth Army was located on Mt. Rossignos, Aringo, Ft. Hay joined the Eighth Italian Army on the Piave front on September 29 and remained with this branch until January 15, when he was assigned to the Fourth Italian Army.

In seven months' service at the front the ambulance was not hit once. It covered 4,537 miles and carried 3,274 patients.

Makes Good Record
Fraser's ambulance was No. 79,483. It is in as good condition as when it started out. It covered more than 6,000 miles and hauled more than 4,000 patients, and most of the driving was done in the Italian Alps.

Fraser's first assignment was to the extreme top of Mount Cavaletto, an elevation of 4,500 feet, and just behind the lines. Fraser made two trips a day—one along the front for patients during the day and one down the mountain at night to the base hospital. Fraser was connected with the Sixth and Eighth Italian Armies.

An effort is now being made to learn the whereabouts of the third ambulance.

Urge Local Tennis Stars to Send in Their Entries

With the scheduled start of the annual Greater Harrisburg Tennis tournament only a little over a week distant, entries for the various events are not being filed as fast as the committee in charge of the affair had hoped would be the case.

Experience in past years has been that entries in the vast majority of instances are not forwarded to the tournament committee until only a day or two prior to the drawings for the events, which always places such entrants in the position of possibly having their entries inadvertently overlooked in the rush which characterizes the last day for receipts of these entries.

While the tournament committee will use, as in the past, every precaution to see that each entry is carefully recorded, those received at the last minute always run a certain risk of being overlooked in the final rush of entries. Hence the importance of forwarding entries as far in advance of the last date for their receipt as is possible.

Entrance Fees
The tournament committee has also requested the announcement that entrance fees are not necessarily payable at the time the entries are submitted. They must, however, in all cases be paid before the first match is played. Where they accompany the entry, in case a certain event is not run off due to lack

JUNIOR LEAGUE IN HARD LUCK

Postponed Games Are Piling Up; Schedule to Run During September

Unless St. Swithin eases up the players in City Junior League fear they will go stale. They have not had a chance to warm up. If the prediction for a forty-day rain holds out, these future greats say they will be playing baseball next winter. Postponed games to date will keep the league busy until September.

The Hygienic team offers to be having the hardest luck of any of the teams on the circuit. Four out of five times that Hygienic was scheduled to play old man weather came along and interfered.

Game To-night Perhaps
To-night St. Mary's, who has gone four straight wins and East End, leaders of the league, who have also made four straight, will have one of the hardest battles of their lives when they meet at Nineteenth and Greenwood streets this evening.

Ferdie Schupp Changes Plans For Quitting Game

Ferdie Schupp

New York, July 23.—Ferdie Schupp, the Giant pitcher, who recently was traded to St. Louis for catcher Bill Snyder, isn't going to quit the game in a huff as he said he would when he heard the news of what is regarded in baseball circles as a demotion. At the time he was quoted as saying he was through and intended to give up baseball to go into business with his father. A few days' sober thought, however, has caused him to change his mind. Now he says he will go to St. Louis gladly, is sure his arm will come around all right and soon expects to be pitching the game that made him look the sensation of the National League two years ago. It's just history repeating itself. Well, here's hoping that Ferdie has the right line on himself.
