JUDGE GILLAN HOLDS PUPILS MUST OBTAIN VACCINATION PROOF

Franklin County Court Defines Law Which Requires Authorities to Exclude Unvaccinated Children From School; Feeling Ran High in Montgomery Township

Chambersburg, Pa., July 23.—Montgomery township's antagonism to the vaccination law was declared unlawful in an opinion handed down by Judge Gillan yesterday. Much trouble followed the efforts of the township's school authorities to exclude unvaccinated pupils from the schools several months ago and the matter was brought before the court. Feeling ran high and the law was scored by parents and citizens who objected to having their children vaccinated. Judge Gillan holds that the law requires the authorities of every school district to produce a vaccination certificate signed by a physician. Judge Gillan says, too, that it is equally well settled that the law requires that every child between eight and sixteen is required to attend a day school in which the common English branches are taught; that every parent, guardian, or person having control or charge of any such child is required to send such child to school unless legally excused by the board of school directors on account of mental, physical or other urgent reasons, and a parent, guardian, or person in parental relation having control of such child, who fails to send such child to school, or thereof before a magistrate, shall be subject to the penalties provided by Act of Assembly.

RARE DISEASE CLAIMS VICTIM

Hagerstown, Md., July 23.—Hagerstown's first victim of Hodgkin's disease is Charles H. Nigh, who died last night. The disease, a rare one, causes swelling, followed by hardening of the muscles of the neck, which contract and cause suffocation. It was at first thought Nigh had contracted tuberculosis. A year ago he formed a cough and swelling of the face and a peculiar expression of the eyes. The boy was sent for treatment by radiation to the Kelly sanatorium, Baltimore, which resulted in temporary relief. The disease was discovered by a prominent physician by the name of Hodgkin in 1822 and a cure has never been found for it.

DEATH SUMMONS B. F. HIESTAND

Marietta's Best Known Citizen Dies Late Tuesday at Age of 91 Years

Marietta, Pa., July 23.—B. F. Hiestand, one of Marietta's best known and one of Lancaster county's wealthiest citizens, died at his home in Marietta, July 2, 1828. He came to Marietta about 1848, and entered the lumber business, being then but twenty years old. Two years later he formed a partnership with the late Samuel C. Hiestand. Their business relations continued until the death of the latter in 1876, whereupon the party left for Harrisburg, where the deed was turned over to the State Highway Department. During their stay in the Capital City, the Hanoverians took luncheon at the Penn-Harris hotel. At the luncheon were State Highway Commissioner Sadler, Senator Marlow, York, Robert E. Keales, York, speaker of the House of Representatives, and S. S. Lewis, York, of the Auditor General's Office. On their homeward trip last night, the 18 members of the party cut down all toll gates along the road with axes provided for the purpose.

Welsch, one of the best players in the district, will be held the position of football coach and director of athletics, the post formerly filled by "Lone Star" Dietz.

Continued Rains Dishearten Farmers of York County

Dillsburg, Pa., July 23.—Farmers in the upper-end of York county are disheartened over the continuous rainfall of the past ten days. Heavy loss will be sustained, it is said. In instances where wheat had been cut and sheaved, the grain is said to be sprouting. Farmers, who had difficulty, or were unable to secure farm labor over the harvesting season, will probably sustain the greatest loss. Destruction of the potato crop, which bids fair to be a bumper one in this section of the county, is now threatened. One farmer said that unless the rain soon ceases, his entire tuber crop will decay in the ground.

VETERAN HUNTER IS DEAD AT AGE OF 94

John J. Gantz Told by Army Surgeon He Would Not Live Long Passes Away in Late Evening of Life at Home of Daughter in Lewistown; Knew Woods of County

Lewistown, Pa., July 23.—When the Civil War broke out, John J. Gantz, veteran hunter who died here yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Grant Ort, walked to Harrisburg to enlist. The physician who examined him advised him to return home, saying: "Young man, you have quick consumption. You would not live to reach the front." He was 94 years old when he passed out. He did not go to the army. Instead, he came home and worked on the farm and enjoyed good health for many years. He spent the greater part of his life working as a farmer. For more than 20 years he was caretaker of the county bridge that spans the river from Lewistown to Lewistown Junction. He hunted in this section for about four score years and thoroughly knew the woods of the county. He hunted when game was abundant and often went out and shot five wild turkeys in a few hours. He killed all manner of game native to this section, hunting up until about three years ago when he had to give up the trail on account of failing sight. He was a crack shot and a good fellow. He attributed his long life to the fact that he never hurried at meals, ate only wholesome food and was temperate in all things. John J. Gantz was born at Hope Furnace, this county, in November, 1824. He was twice married, both wives having preceded him to the grave. A sister, Mrs. Marjorie Kuhn, of this place, died last week. Samuel Gantz, of the United States regular army, is a son, and three daughters also survive—Mrs. Grant Ort and Mrs. Charles Markley, of Lewistown, Pa., and Mrs. Harry Keller, of Philadelphia. Probably no hunter of Pennsylvania ever held a more remarkable record for hunting. For at least 80 years he followed the trail every season.

Lewistown Soldier Is Dead of Wounds Overseas; Turn For Worse Sudden

Lewistown, Pa., July 23.—Harry Mitchell, of this place, received a telegram yesterday from the War Department stating that his son, James C. Mitchell, has died of wounds in a hospital in France. He had been in the army since 1917. In 1889 he entered into business, organizing the Marietta Casting Company and was its president until recently. In agricultural pursuits he had always taken a great interest and the many farms, of which he was owner, proved this, as many are among the finest in the State, they being especially adapted for the cultivation of tobacco. Mr. Hiestand was also engaged in the purchasing and packing of leaf tobacco. Until a few years ago he attended to repairs and improvements personally about his farms. Mr. Hiestand was often called upon to fill positions of trust, and had served many times as executor or administrator of estates. He was one of the originators of the Hanover Junction Railroad, which extended from Chickies to the Reading and Columbia Railroad Company. He was affiliated with many of the turnpike companies in this section of the county. Mr. Hiestand married Miss Martha Schook. Eight children were born to the union. His wife died a number of years ago. Only two sons survive, B. Frank and Henry S. Hiestand, both of Marietta. There are a number of grandchildren also surviving. He was a member of the Presbyterian church and gave largely to its support and to charity. One of his many deeds was annually to give the children of the Children's Home of Lancaster, an outing on his birthday. He was recognized as one of the best business men of the county, and while conservative, was enterprising. By all who knew him, he was looked up to, not only as a sound business man, but also a Christian gentleman and a citizen of the highest standing. Funeral arrangements have not been completed, but burial will be in the family plot in the Marietta cemetery.

McCoy had been sleeping in barns near here for several days. When he awoke up there were found in his pockets two thousand morphine tablets and six needles. The morphine tablets were identified by Dr. D. S. Smith, of Shippensburg, as some stolen from his office. McCoy was charged with larceny and taken to jail in Carlisle. McCoy was in bad shape, physically, as he had eaten very little during the past several days and had been making use of the dope, using the needle five and six times a day, according to his own story.
