CLEVE KESSLER HOME FROM WAR

Twice Rejected He Returns With Highest Emblems of Bravery in France

Selinsgrove, Pa., July 25.—Cleve Kessler has come back to Shamokin Dam from the world war wearing a United States distinguished service medal and a French Croix de Guerre. He is the only Snyder county known to have been awarded one of his country's distinguished service medals. Kessler was rejected twice by recruiting officers.

Kessler lived along the canal with his father in a lowly hut. Fishing, hunting and living the life of the great outdoors were what appealed to Cleve. He had been on his own resources all his life, and was not averse to fight for what he wanted. Moreover, he usually got it when anything was to be settled with fists.

Kessler got into the army at length, and was sent to Florida and then overseas. He was a mule skinner and a packman. One day he braved German shells to rescue a wounded French soldier and was awarded the medals he wears for his bravery.
