SEEKS TRAIL OF MISSING FUNDS

Deposited in Bank or Converted For Own Purposes, Question in Crash

Philadelphia, July 26.—Colonel Fred Taylor Pusey, special Deputy Attorney General, who is probing Attorney General, who is probing the North Penn Bank crash, started yesterday on the trail of the thousands of dollars which were borrowed from other banks on the strength of notes given as collateral. Colonel Pusey said that he had been unable to learn whether this money had been deposited in the ruined institution, or whether Raiph T. Moyer, the cashler, who is accused of wrecking the institution, had converted the funds to his own purposes.

"This is the line of inquiry that we want to pursue now," said Colonel Pusey last night, "and with this knowledge gained we can get an adequate idea of the assets of the bank, and how much of those supposed overdrafts are real or are protected by notes which are collectable."

While the State investigator was busy in this manner District Attorney Rotan's office started its own probe to determine if further arrests are warranted. James H. Cortelyou, chief of the county detectives, and his first assistant, Samuel Wynne, were placed on the case, while the banking end of this investigation
