The Lewistown man jumped from the car and landed on his head. His condition was so bad when taken to the office of a doctor that it was deemed inadvisable to risk the journey to the Chambersburg hospital. His condition is critical. The charge against Gohynes is driving an automobile while intoxicated.

SEVEN ARE IN JAIL ON ARSON CHARGE

Burning of Barn in Cumberland County Followed by Arrests

Carlisle, Aug. 4.—Charles Yingst, William Yingst, William Kelley, the Johnson brothers, and men by the names of Kunkleman and Lynch, all of Cleversburg, are in jail here following an escapade, which took place in Cleversburg on Monday, and which resulted in the burning of the barn of George M. Miller.

The offenders were arrested by officers of the State Police stationed at Mechanicsburg and Constable McCoy, of Carlisle. It is thought that more arrests will follow.

The affair is the result of intense ill feeling in the neighborhood, and especially between the Millers and Yingsts. Those taken into custody are held on the charges of malicious mischief and arson, the former charge growing out of the fact that the Miller house was stoned during the day and the buildings burned at night.

In this feud, which has been going on for some time, even the women take part. Not long ago women of the Miller faction are reported to have stonned some of the other faction while the latter were on their way to church.
