Visiting the Shops With Adele

ANSWER me, if you can! Where is there a store other than Douchits that can conscientiously say that its volume of business in July was even bigger than its Christmas business? At this "live store" their methods have drawn such large crowds during the past few weeks that the records show the greatest increase ever credited to any single month of the year. And it is to be wondered at when they treat the public as they do? Hardly! It is evident that the prices at which they have been selling their merchandise during the July Reduction Sales would attract anyone to spend money now, while the savings are so great. Be wise. Watch the Douchit advertisements. They tell some wonderful stories.

POOR Elizabeth Ann lost a naughty puppy to it. But that's a slight matter, for Elizabeth Ann is only a dolly and getting a new arm is a very simple affair. At the Doll Hospital at the Marianne Toy Shop, Locust street, arms and legs, to say nothing of bodies, heads, wigs and even eyes, can be restored with new ones. But the sick dolly who wishes to be made well by Christmas time must be admitted to the hospital soon after September 1, because it will close temporarily about the first of December. And small mothers will surely want their suffering children restored to normal and arrayed in a dainty Marianne Shop frock before that time.

VISUALIZE yourself in a gown of navy blue Georgette heavily encrusted with beads of glistening white. Don't you love the picture? Of course you do, even though it isn't nearly complete. Now fancy it with these details: The beads, arranging themselves in conventional design, have formed four panel effects on the skirt, while the waist—which, by the way, would just adore being termed a blouse—has borrowed the panel inspiration and flaunts its both in front and in back. Beads, beads everywhere, even on the bell-shaped sleeves! And that is why we fairly devour it with our eyes and utter little exclamations of astonishment at its beauty. My advice is this—visit the Cloos Shop and see it for yourself.

I USE NO DROPS Many of my new patients, although recommended to come to me, say that they hesitated to come, fearing that I used the so-called drops in the eyes in making my examinations. I wish to say, NO! I never use poison in any form to examine eyes—it is not necessary with the modern instruments which I employ. Optometry as practiced to-day needs no drugs. E. S.
