

EAGLE BOATS MAKING GOOD

Operating on Dispatch Service in North Russian Waters

Aboard U. S. Eagle Boat No. 3, in White Sea, Aug. 5.—American Eagles boats now are operating on dispatch service in North Russian waters.

Eagle Boats Nos. 1, 2 and 3, the first built of this type for the American Government, arrived in Archangel after a 6,200 mile run under their own steam from the Atlantic seaboard and according to their officers, have more than made good.

Crews of the larger naval vessels are inclined to chaff the Eagle Boat men and call these craft the "tin lizzies" of the navy, but the officers of the Eagles are proud of their seaworthiness and efficiency.

The Associated Press correspondent has just made a trip from Archangel to Kem, across the White Sea, aboard the flagship of the little flotilla and in this 16-hour run, in stormy weather, the flagship and the No. 1 had ample opportunity to show their seaworthiness.

In Archangel, at this season of the year, the weather has been almost tropical, and the American officers, who had expected to see the light and frigid even in the eternal daylight days of June, were confronted, instead, with temperatures and sunshine that made white duck the prescribed uniform.

Two hours out of Archangel, however, at the entrance to the White Sea, the Eagles ran into a cold gale and snowstorm that set the light craft tossing and rolling and forced the crews quickly into their woolens and oilskins. However, the Eagles kept ploughing along to their course, and arrived in Kem without the worse for one of the worst batterings they have yet received.

With their two four-inch guns, one three-inch anti-aircraft gun, and machine-gun anti-airplane battery, the Eagles might be expected to give a good account of themselves, say the officers, against submarines or any other water craft or anything near their size.

The three boats operating in the White Sea are under the command of Lieutenant Commander Norman Scott, U. S. N., whose home is in Indianapolis.

King Kelly Offers to Take Up Passenger For Parachute Jump

Want to take a ride in a great big balloon? Well, here's your chance. King Kelly, who for the last fifteen years has been visiting Paxtang Park and who is there all this week making a flight each afternoon, is ready to take any person in Harrisburg a ride in his balloon this week, provided, however, that the applicant assume all risk of the journey. That is the only qualification. Of course, Kelly will go along on the trip and then there will be the parachute leap and the drop to earth in the bargain. The whole thing is over in ten minutes, Kelly said to-day, but each minute is crowded with excitement and persons with a desire to do something out of the ordinary will have their fondest wishes gratified by the trip.

Under ordinary conditions Kelly goes to a height of from one-half to a mile from the earth but in making his offer to take up any persons with flying desires, he said he would go up the better part of two miles.

"There's a lot of fun about ballooning," Kelly smiled. "You go up like a shot with a cannon and there's a rather peculiar but pleasant sensation on the first trip. Cutting the parachute loose from the balloon means that you have a straight drop of from 100 to 250 feet before the parachute drops and during that time you have a chance to imagine all kinds of things. You can see pretty flowers and perchance you may imagine you see your friends passing in single file alongside of you. But then the parachute opens, your speed slackens and you float off slowly to some landing place. Now I like ballooning and when I came here yesterday the thought struck me that perhaps some of the thousands who have seen me before would like to take a trip with me. If you know any person with such desires just send them along to me and we'll have a dandy time up among the clouds some day this week."

Rosenblum Is Expected to Aid Revenue Probe

New York, August 5.—Morris Rosenblum, an internal revenue inspector, pleaded guilty of conspiracy to defraud the Government out of income tax money at the opening of his trial and that of Morris Rachmil and Abraham Lincoln Samuelson, partners in the Sterling Accounting and Audit Company in Federal Court here. Rosenblum probably will testify against the other defendants.

Adolph Pricken, vice-president of the Coastwise Warehouse, Inc., the first witness called, testified that Samuelson suggested to him last October that he could save the company considerable money by substituting new books on January 1, 1919, and destroying the old ones. Samuelson and Rachmil later told him that they would have Rosenblum's O. K. and cover up any false return submitted, he said.

The witness also testified that at a later conference with Rosenblum and the defendants he was told the deal would cost $3,000, which would be 15 per cent of the $60,000 saved by the false return.

CONGREGATION FILES ANSWER TO SUIT

Pastor of Evangelical Lutheran Church Declares Building Is Being Used According to Desires of Majority

Denying the charge that the Holy Communion Lutheran Church is not used as provided in the charter of the church and claiming that there was authority for not remaining in the Evangelical Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania, that the services in the church are conducted according to the faith and doctrine of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, counsel for the Rev. John Miller, pastor, and other defendants in an equity suit, filed an answer in which the court is asked to dismiss the proceeding.

Recently U. G. Nagle, J. L. Cressman, M. C. Bushey, William Hoover, William Brommer, George W. Zimmerman and J. S. Peifer filed an action against the pastor, William A. Gernert, William Bailey, H. H. Umholtz, J. A. Hamilton, Edward Schmehl, S. E. Miller, Samuel Hoffman, C. C. Hogentogier and Henry Quier, claiming they had no right to the use of the church for having withdrawn from the Evangelical Lutheran Ministerium.

With the filing of an answer to charges made in this equity suit by attorneys for the defense, E. M. Hershey, William M. Hain and William M. Hargest, the next procedure will be fixing a time for hearing the case in court.

In the answer which was filed the statements are summarized as follows: Deny that the plaintiffs are in good standing in the Holy Communion Church, the first three named having been ousted as trustees, March 25, 1919, and three others elected to succeed them.

Deny that church received any support except from congregation since January, 1917. Deny also that congregation built the church with financial assistance from Ministerium or Lancaster Conference.

Assert that congregation from time of organization has been and still is a member of the Ministerium. Claim the Holy Communion Church is an independent organization and the Ministerium has not and never had any authority over congregation.

Admitting the union of the General Council of the United Evangelical Lutheran Church in North America and the United Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in the South into one organization, the United Lutheran Church in America, the defendants claim that by this union the constitution which was then adopted greatly changed the form of government from that formerly used by the General Council of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in North America.

Mention is made of the change in calling a minister to a church, every congregation having that right under the new system which went into effect November 14, 1918, with the forming of the Lutheran union. It is provided that the synod shall have the right to call and appoint ministers for all congregations.

Other points brought out: It is stated that the congregation at its regular annual meeting in January by more than a two-thirds vote decided not to join the new United Lutheran Church in America, which it is claimed entirely abolished congregational power and created an ecclesiastical, autocratic commission for the decision of all questions of principle and action arising within the United Lutheran Church in America.

Other similar statements in which the independence of the congregation is claimed, are given in the answer. It is stated that the church was not bound by its charter or any law of the State to join any organization which the Evangelical Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania joined.

That a small minority of the congregation of the Holy Communion Church together with the plaintiffs have affiliated themselves with the United Lutheran Church and refuse to worship with in the answer, and also have not contributed to the church, but illegally claim to be the church, and congregation of the church.

In conclusion it is claimed that the property has not been diverted from

SEEK CONTROL OF FUEL AGAIN

Government Officials Think It Would Reduce Cost of Coal

Washington, Aug. 5.—Restoration of Government control of fuel prices as well as food prices is being seriously considered as a weapon in the fight to beat down the high cost of living. Sentiment for the revival of the Fuel and Food Administrations, which exercised sweeping powers during hostilities, is apparent not only among the Government officials who are working out a solution of present conditions, but was reflected to-day in Congress.

No legislative action would be necessary to bring either one or both of these administrations into play again. The authority granted in the laws creating them holding until peace shall have been concluded by the ratification of the treaty. Even fuel dealers, fearing that the constantly mounting prices will bring the American people to the point of violence during the coming winter, are urging restoration of fuel control.

Practically all the small towns about Harrisburg have formed their posts and are going ahead rapidly in their membership campaign and it is desired that this city follow suit. Men are coming in every day to the War Camp Community Service to register their names, but more are needed, and there is no reason to delay.

BULL HOUSE ONCE HOME

Chicago.—Hull House, Chicago, gets its name from the fact that the house was originally built in 1856 as a residence for one of Chicago's pioneer citizens, Charles J. Hull. After passing through many changes, occupied once as a second-hand furniture store, then as a factory, then as a tenement house, with a reputation for a haunted attic, it finally, in 1889, passed into the hands of Miss Jane Addams as the headquarters and center of her charity and reform work. At first she rented the house and repaired and furnished it at her own expense, but a few months later the owner gave her a free lease of the house which ran for many years.
