LAWYER AND DENTIST

Admitted to the bar in 1887, in Carbon county, Dr. Kalbfus took no great interest in his profession, but when he moved to Harrisburg, where he became an attaché in the offices of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. Later he studied dentistry and was graduated from the Philadelphia School of Dentistry in 1892.

After carrying on an active practice in this profession, he accepted in 1895 the newly-created position of Secretary of the State Game Commission. This was at the request of the Pennsylvania State Sportsman's Association, of which Dr. Kalbfus was an active member. He served in this capacity without remuneration for the first six years, and held the same position until his death in 1915.

"Woody" Kelly, the other victim of the accident, has been field superintendent of the Game Commission since 1912. He is well known throughout the State by his nickname when he was in charge of a large lumber concern, Mr. Kelly being connected with the commission in 1913.

Visiting the Shops With Adele

DO you realize that 80 per cent of the world's supply of coffee comes from Brazil? And do you know that during the war a poor Brazil was left with a heavy stock on hand? The result was a depression on the market and a lowering of the price. This reduction was offset, however, by delivery to this country. So coffee sold for a practically normal amount until the last few months, when conditions changed, causing a sudden increase in value. Consequently the Grand Union Tea Co., 208 North Second street, is not for its policy of selling merchandise of the highest quality at the lowest possible price, was forced to charge more than it desired. And on Friday evening I'm going to tell you the interesting story of the reason why.

THE black jet trimming does it. There's no doubt at all about that. It adds an absolutely irresistible touch. And the proud, little evening gown which it adorns is all well aware of the fact. Made of soft, black tulle, it fairly bores with its deep cuff of jet lace. Of course you do, and you're also delighted to find that the hem flaunts a similar feature. With shoulders and scarf of blackest net, its somberness is relieved by a vivid cluster of silk geraniums, furnishing just the necessary touch of color. Incidentally, you can see it for yourself at the Closs Shop, in the Penn-Harris building, the home of modish garments.

WHAT are you doing with your money these days? Are you using it in the wisest way? Here's hoping you're not contented with leaving it in the bank or carrying it in your pocket when you know that never before in the history of the city have people been spending their money so freely? And do you realize that never before in the history of the city have people been spending their money so freely? And do you realize that never before in the history of the city have people been spending their money so freely? And do you realize that never before in the history of the city have people been spending their money so freely?

TRY one Weaver's roast chicken lanches. They're simply delicious. Served every Thursday, they tempt the palate as few things do. So be wise! Lunch there every day, and then make it a daily habit. Indeed, that's really the easiest thing in the world to do when they tempt you with bait such as this—roast pork, new potatoes, peas, plums, cucumbers, and what you choose of three desserts. Doesn't it sound good? It surely does, and it tastes still better. Perfectly seasoned and thoroughly cooked, their meat is sure to satisfy even the most particular.

LITTLE kiddies of from 2 to 5 were simply invented to play in the curving rompers now being shown at the Art and Gift Shop, 101 N. Second street. These rompers, which come in deep splashes of pink, yellow, brown or Navy blue, are both practical and appealing. The collars and cuffs are stamped with dainty designs, and discreetly hinting that a tiny touch of embroidery would not go amiss. And were I three instead of—well never mind how much—I'd want most of all to frolic in the darling suit of brown with white collars at the elbows and the neck.

CITY COMMENDED FOR PENN-HARRIS

Public Spiritedness Approved by Magazine of National Circulation

The aggressiveness and civic spirit of Harrisburg in bringing about the completion of the Penn-Harris hotel as a community asset, are commended in an article which appears in the current issue of The American City, a magazine of national circulation devoted to the dissemination of news concerning the noteworthy achievements of American cities. The article describes the hotel as one of the most up-to-date and modern in the country.

The Penn-Harris hotel in Harrisburg is a monument to the civic pride of the Capital City of Pennsylvania. The item states, "It offers not only unrivaled facilities for the entertainment of conventions, but provides a community center for the assembling and entertaining of Harrisburg's residents."

The Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce also is commended in the article. It is pointed out in bringing about the completion of the hotel that the campaign for the erection of the hotel was launched by the Chamber of Commerce, with the loyal support of the public spirited citizens of the city. It is pointed out that outside capital would demand such exorbitant terms that the city would be the loser in the transaction. The Harrisburg Hotel Company was organized and incorporated. The stock was put on sale and quickly taken up by the citizens. It is pointed out that the hotel was completed despite the obstacles accruing from the war, and its successful operation during the first few months since its opening, were described in the magazine article.

Farmers Anxious to Help Solve Problem

Indianapolis, Aug. 11.—Representatives of farmers' organizations in twenty-four wheat and corn growing States will attend a conference in Washington late to-day to discuss the high cost of living and ways for united action in the high cost of living investigation, according to John G. Brown, president of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' Associations. Mr. Brown returned from Chicago yesterday, where he attended a meeting of farmers' representatives of Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa, at which it was decided to call the meeting in Washington.

Strikes Spreading in Japan; Tokio Newspapers Suspend

Tokio, Friday, Aug. 11.—Virtually all the newspapers of Tokio have suspended publication, owing to the demands of the printers for higher wages, which the owners refuse to grant. Numerous strikes are in progress elsewhere in Japan, some of the governmental establishments being affected. There have been no disorders.

MOOSE BAND CHOOSES OFFICERS FOR YEAR

At a meeting of the Moose Band in the clubhouse parlor, Third and Hoas streets, Friday evening, the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: President, Boyd S. Fowler; vice-president, R. M. Shuler; secretary, A. C. Blair; treasurer, Harry E. Towson; director, J. L. Springer; assistant director, H. E. Petherhoff; librarian, M. L. Lighter; trustees, W. C. Miller, Sr., M. L. Dick, W. O. Williamson, J. L. Scarf, George W. Shuey and Harry E. Parsons; manager, J. L. Springer; publicity, Boyd S. Fowler.

The retiring officers were tendered a vote of thanks for the condition of the band, both in membership and solid financial standing. This band has a membership of fifty-six union musicians and although it has been organized less than a year, the strides it has made have placed it in the front rank of fraternity bands in the State. It has a number of out-of-town engagements booked, as well as local concerts and picnics. It will be heard at the grocers' picnic at Hershey Thursday.

NO EFFECT ON MARKET

New York, Aug. 11.—The sudden death of Andrew Carnegie apparently had little effect upon the stock market. The common stock of the United States Steel Corporation, of which the Carnegie companies formed an important part, lagged behind the general list, but it was declared in well informed quarters that Mr. Carnegie's holdings in the steel corporation were limited to first mortgage bonds.

Our Slant on Our Job Most people think they're working for money. Which simply proves that they don't understand themselves. Money is just one factor. But the real driving force is not money. It is the instinct inborn in mankind to be of service, to play a useful part in the community's life—to do one's bit. An efficiency expert suspected this to be true but to prove his case he tried this experiment. He took charge of a gang of pavers, men who work by the day. On Monday he had them lay a certain section of pavement. On Tuesday morning he looked over the job and gave orders that it all be ripped up and re-laid in a different way. The men followed his instructions but with some grumbling. Still they were being paid regular wages. What difference did it make how they put in their time? On Wednesday morning the boss had Tuesday's work ripped up and re-laid in still a different way. This day the feeling ran high. The men were openly mutinous. Still they did the work. On Thursday morning he ordered the previous day's work torn up and one and all the men promptly went on strike. They said that they refused to work any longer for such a fool even though he paid them good wages. He had proved the truth of his theory that men work for something besides money. It is true that this shop is financially a success. But this phase is after all a corollary, a by-product. It is because we are successful in serving a useful purpose in the economic life of Harrisburg that our books show a profit. Money accumulated in any other way than by rendering full value will some day be considered tainted, even though there be no dishonesty involved. Money made through a lucky turn in the stock market is clean, to be sure, but what service did its possessor deliver the community? It is because we are doing our bit with willing enthusiasm—it is because we are genuinely interested in dressing Harrisburg women becomingly that we have been successful in our chosen field.
