Deficit Grows

C. Howard Lloyd, architect for the Edison building, suggested painting the walls of the school, but the directors deferred action. Secretary D. D. Hammelbaugh reported that at the end of the school year there was a deficit of $57,346.26, of which about $8,000 was created this year because of additional expense at the open air school.

The board decided upon the recommendations of the principals of the Junior High Schools that ninth grade pupils, not residing in the city, should be admitted to the new buildings; and ce admitted to the new buildings; and seventh and eighth grade non-residents seventh and eighth grade non-residents.
