

MEXICO LOOKS FOR 1,000,000 IMMIGRANTS

Special Commission Studies How to Receive Them in the Country

By Associated Press. Mexico City, Aug. 18.—How to make homes for a million prospective new colonists, how to make these persons fit into the scheme of life here and how best to distribute them over the republic are questions of immigration receiving the attention of a special commission appointed by President Carranza.

According to data collected by this committee on Articles of Immigration, 1,000,000 persons will migrate from various European and Asiatic countries to Mexico within the next year. They are expected to leave their native lands because of disrupted conditions due to the war. Communications received here from England, France, Germany and Russia indicate that colonies of these nationals are already being formed and will embark for Mexico at an opportune moment. Luis Ludery Rol, president of the investigating committee, has been quoted as saying that Mexico welcomes all dependable colonists. The committee has made no announcement as to the location of the various colonies; whether they are to receive grants of land or are to be assimilated among the natives. It is believed, however, that there is sufficient undeveloped land in the republic to accommodate all home seekers and that equitable distribution will be made as occasion demands. Lower California is present appears to be the goal of a large number of repatriated Mexicans who for the past few years have been living in the United States. It is estimated that within the next few months 5,000 new Mexican families will be established there.

SHE KNEW THE GREAT MERIT OF NATURE REMEDIES

Mrs. De Luca Tells How Natonex Brought About Purification of Her System "Sometimes at night it would seem as if I would smother. I could not sleep and the trouble with my liver caused me to be dizzy and sometimes I would faint and be almost in a stupor for hours" declared Mrs. Louisa De Luca, of 325 S. Front street, Steelton, Pa. "The real cause of my trouble was that my food did not digest," Mrs. De Luca explained. "I had had stomach and liver trouble for years.

"I told a friend of our family just what my condition was and he said 'I know just the medicine you need,' and the next day he brought me a box of Natonex. "I came from a country where Nature roots and herbs are used for medicines more than anything else and when I saw that Natonex is made of the most famous of these Nature remedies I felt sure that it would benefit me.

"In a remarkable short time I began to be relieved of the awful dizziness and my digestion began to be regular. After about three weeks my system had been so cleansed and purified that my digestion was almost perfect and my organs were regular.

"It is not often that a person is able to find such a medicine as Natonex and I am very glad to recommend it. I found that everything claimed for Natonex was true." The famous Nature remedies of which Mrs. De Luca speaks are Dandelion root, Juniper Berries, Gentian root, Linseed, Valerian root, Prickly Ash Bark, Sarsaparilla root, Cassia, Sassafras bark, Jamaica Ginger root, Rhubarb root and Peruvian bark. These safe, sensible Nature remedies have been combined into a pure Nature medicine that acts not on one organ alone, but on the entire digestive system.

Men and women who need system purification, better digestion, purer blood, real nerve vigor and bodily strength, should begin the Natonex treatment at once. Natonex is especially recommended in Harrisburg by the Gorgas Drug Co., 16 N. Third street, and is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

NEED MORE HELP IN NORTH RUSSIA

British and Russians Make Slow Progress in Offensive

Archangel, Aug. 18.—The British-Russian offensive in North Russia, which was intended this summer to connect with Admiral Kolchak's Siberian army and establish Archangel as a base through which Allied supplies might be handled to all anti-Bolshevik armies in the field, has met with unexpectedly strong resistance on the Dvina river at the same time that Admiral Kolchak's armies have been given backward into Siberia. Because of insufficient forces, both of men and equipment, the natural factors have aided the Bolsheviks, the ex-editor, according to military feature in Archangel at this time, may be doomed this summer to a failure equally as bad as that which met last summer's efforts unless help is thrown in at once by the Allied governments and a war against the Bolsheviks undertaken in earnest.

Had Awaited Summer Throughout the long winter, when the Allies and Russians on the Archangel front were fighting a hard pressed, defensive battle against superior forces, the Allied command was waiting the arrival of summer to take the offensive.

Fearing that political conditions in England would be greatly disturbed if it were to become known that the two brigades of British volunteer troops, sent ostensibly to effect the relief of Allied forces already imperiled and outnumbered, were in reality to be used as a reserve for this summer's offensive, the censor did not permit the local announcement to that effect to be cabled abroad.

Behind Scenes This announcement, made to the Archangel press on June 6, by Major General Ironside, commander-in-chief of the North Russian forces, was to the effect that Archangel was to be made a base for the Siberian army, through an immediate offensive for Kotlass, on the river Dvina.

Kotlass is the rail head for the line running to Viatchka, on the Trans-Siberian railway, a distance of approximately 250 miles from the position at that time of Kolchak's advanced posts, since then driven back many miles eastward. In this campaign, said General Ironside, the British troops were to act as a reserve while the Russians went ahead. The offensive began late in June, but so far has advanced only a few miles. Kotlass is still more than a hundred miles from the Russian and British positions on the Dvina, at least, in fact, only at about the same point where the Americans were established last autumn before the strong Bolshevik offensive caused them to withdraw during the winter.

PLATINUM IN GREAT DEMAND

Lifting of War Ban Causes Big Rush For This Metal

New York, Aug. 18.—The world is on tiptoe for the discovery of new platinum fields. In every mining region on the globe, careful search is being made for traces of the metal which is six times more precious than gold. Since the war-time ban on platinum was lifted, platinum jewelry has returned to greater popularity than ever and the development of the airplane industry has created new demands for the metal. It is with interest, therefore, that manufacturers learn of the recent finding of platinum in the diamond-bearing gravels of South Africa. The discovery is not as yet commercially important but even trace of the metal in the bonanza mineral belt of South Africa is suggestive of rich possibilities.

Dr. H. P. Maupe, director of the Southern Rhodesia Geological Survey, made an investigation of the concentrate obtained from the earth from which diamonds are washed at Willowby's siding in Southern Rhodesia and sent samples to the Imperial Institute for analysis. The diamondiferous gravels, according to the analysis, contained three ounces and a half pennyweight of platinum to the ton and seven ounces of osmium. Palladium was probably also present but in quantities too small in the samples to be identified. The concentrate also contained a large amount of gold.

Osmidium is a native alloy composed of osmium and iridium and is used chiefly for tipping gold pens and for bearings in watches and compasses.

Unseen Lumber Much of the lumber in a building is like the bones of a body—it is for strength not beauty. The lumber that is most important is usually under cover. Some people thoughtlessly permit lumber to go into their buildings that is not well seasoned, thereby weakening the whole structure. It pays big to be careful about the lumber that you don't see, otherwise you can expect trouble. UNITED ICE & COAL CO., Lumber Department, Forster & Cowden Sts.
