

NO RECEPTIONS IN RETURN OF HUN PRISONERS

Will Not Be Allowed in Occupied Area It Is Ordered

With the American Forces in Germany Aug. 19.—Public receptions and meetings planned by civilians in honor of returning German prisoners of war are not to be allowed in the American occupied area, notice to this effect recently having been sent to the authorities of the local government. The German Red Cross has been collecting funds for several months in preparation for the home-coming of thousands of Germans from France and England.

quotes a letter to the Ober-President of the Rhine province as follows: "While sympathizing fully with the natural desire of the German people to accord a welcome to the returning prisoners of war, nevertheless, in view of the fact that the military occupation must continue until the treaty of peace is ratified by the Allied governments, and particularly in view of the necessity of preventing any semblance of disorder which might compel a resort to disciplinary action, the commanding general directs that you have the returnees—prisoners of war—of Coblenz and Trier notify the population of their respective districts that the reception of returning prisoners of war must be limited to personal and family receptions, and must not be made the occasion of official receptions, processions or any other public assemblies.

"This will not, of course, be construed to prevent the Red Cross authorities from serving refreshments at railroad stations.

FAST MAIL SIXTY YEARS AGO
The first fast mail on a railway west of the Mississippi was run over the Hannibal and St. Joseph line, a northern Missouri railroad between Hannibal on the Mississippi and St. Joseph on the Missouri. This road was completed more than sixty years ago and in April a test fast mail run was made.

CHANGES IN TREATY WILL DELAY PEACE OF WORLD

States had fulfilled its obligations in case of withdrawal from the League.

The President said the United States would have "complete freedom of choice as to the application of force" in carrying out Article Ten of the League Covenant.

Germany Barred

Replying to Senator Fall, who suggested that as Germany was not a member of the League of Nations, amendments to the league covenant would not be submitted to her, and she would not have to give her consent, the President said: "I will admit that that point had not occurred to me. No, she would not."

Discussing Article 11, under which the league could take any action "deemed appropriate" in case war occurred or was threatened, the President said the action contemplated also would rest entirely on a moral obligation.

To Hold Japan

The President intimated that the League of Nations would prevent Japan from assuming any complete sovereignty over Shantung.

Burglar Alarm Draws Crowd but No Burglar

Clanging like a bell at a railway crossing when a train is approaching, the burglar alarm in front of the Montgomery clock building, corner of Third and Chestnut streets, attracted a big crowd of curious people at 11.30 o'clock last night.

The song went off without warning and could be heard for blocks. Pedestrians hurrying along in the rain stopped and gathered in front of the building until the sidewalk was blocked.

A traffic policeman appeared and marched majestically up to the front of the building. The door was locked and he did not know just exactly what to do, when the watchman stuck his head out of the door and said something was wrong with the alarm and that burglars were not trying to break into the vault.

The policeman leaned nonchalantly against the building in front of the door. Presently an electrical man appeared and shut off the alarm. Officials of the company refused to give out any information. It is believed the electrical storm had something to do with the bell.

TEMPERATURE 135 DTGREES

In the desert of Gobi in Central Asia, the largest streams either vanish in the sand or empty into salt lakes. Caravan routes from China to Russia are still important trade channels, for the Russians insist that a sea voyage destroys the flavor of tea. This great and waste is 1,800 miles wide and 400 miles deep, and the almost rainless years since antiquity have parched its sands to the dryness that drifts in gyrating sand waves and snuffs out vegetation with its hot breath.

Here the temperature goes up to 135 and most of the people wear scarf-like draperies on their heads. Additional protection from the boiling hot sun. Many of the rivers never reach an ocean outlet, but lose their moisture in the burning sand and dwindle down to nothingness.

One section of the coast of Central Australia does not boast of even a rivulet to empty into the ocean. The lowest parts are occupied by saline mud, baked and cracked and with excessive sun heat. Rainfall is practically nil and scrubby bushes are about all the plant life seen in these regions. Though not a native of Australia, the camel has been introduced as a pack animal in these stretches of waste, for he can go without drink for a week.—Detroit News.

SENATOR LODGE QUERIES PRESIDENT

Explains Action
"I remember saying to the committee when I was here in March something to the effect that the British draft had constituted the basis of my thought afterward that that was misleading, and I was very glad to tell the committee just what I meant.

"Some months before the conference assembly, plans for the League of Nations had been drawn up by a British committee at the head of which was Mr. Phillimore—I believe will not now say whether I thought it was better or not an improvement, but I built on that draft which was quite different, inasmuch as it put definiteness where there had been what Mr. Phillimore was known as the authority on international law. A copy of that document was sent to me and I built upon that draft. I will not now say whether I thought it was better or not an improvement, but I built on that draft which was quite different, inasmuch as it put definiteness where there had been what Mr. Phillimore was known as the authority on international law.

"The document which I have alluded to, you may have noticed that it consisted of a series of Articles and then supplementary agreements. It was in the supplementary agreements that I embodied the additional ideas that were to be done with the piece of the dismembered empire. After I got to Paris, therefore, I rewrote the document to which I have alluded, and you may have noticed that it consisted of a series of Articles and then supplementary agreements. It was in the supplementary agreements that I embodied the additional ideas that were to be done with the piece of the dismembered empire.

Senator Lodge: "Then, of course, it is obvious that the General Smuts plan had been used. That appears on the face of the document."
The President: "Yes."

Senator Lodge: "Then there was a previous draft in addition to the one you have sent to us. You spoke of a draft that was not submitted to the committee."
The President: "No; that was privately my own."

Senator Lodge: "Was it before our commission?"
The President: "No."
The President said a draft of Article ten which Senator Johnson had presented to the committee was the part of the draft which preceded the draft which was sent to you.

Senator Johnson: "It was the original plan."
The President: "It was the original form of Article ten."
Asked by Senator Lodge whether he had seen the resolution for a league submitted by Secretary Lansing, the President replied: "Yes."

Senator Lodge: "No specific action was taken upon them?"
The President: "Not in a formal way."
Senator Lodge then asked whether the United States would receive any part of the German reparations funds. The President left that question open, because he did not feel that he had any final right to decide it.

PLAYS IN THE MAKING

The Howling dervishes of Turkey have been caught by the camera for the first time, and will be seen in the American Red Cross pictures being distributed by Educational Films.

News comes from England that Sir Harry Lauder is to enter the film world, making a series of two-reel comedies.

Geraldine Farrer has the role of a titled English woman who finds herself in an emotional conflict with an Arabian sheik in her next picture.

WHO PICKS THE TITLES FOR MOTION PICTURES?

One of the greatest problems in motion pictures to-day is the selection of titles. It's much more important than naming Pullman cars.

How many pictures have been made or marred by subtitles? The answer is—scores. What system of a photoplay is most likely to produce uniformly satisfactory results?

Every Goldwyn picture is seen by hundreds of thousands of people, representing every phase of life and mentality in this country and foreign lands.

In devising innovations in production that are being thought about superior photoplays, Samuel Goldwyn gave considerable thought to the matter of titles. He considered them from all angles and finally conceived what he calls "the jury system," a plan that is justifying his confidence in the benefits to be derived from getting a consensus of opinion as to what "goes over" with the general audience reached by Goldwyn Pictures.

The recently formed "title jury" is composed of men and women in the organization who, from experience and temperament, are selected from different viewpoints. The jury comprises those with a literary training and others without any training of the kind. An effort is made to have this body typical of the average motion picture audience as they are found in all parts of the country, in small theaters as well as large.

It is deemed that the director, scenario editor and even the title writer are so close to their work that they know a story backwards, and what may appear perfectly clear to them may appear vague to an audience that carries the picture without previous knowledge as to what it concerns. Sometimes it is found that a number of the jury are doubtful about the meaning of a word or a phrase used in a title, in which case a substitute is suggested.

In striking an average that keeps a production from going over the heads of the audience, the jury is called to carry the picture, and the jury is called to carry the picture, and the jury is called to carry the picture.

Experience has shown that "smart" titles which may appeal to a particularly sophisticated sense of humor are likely to fall flat with a large percentage of photoplay patrons.

SHOT ADS REAL STUFF TO MOVIE

Heroes proved daffodil on Long Island Sound when a launch ran close by a racing shell at the New York Athletic Club course.

Aboard the shell, one of the oarsmen rose in his seat, let go his oar and slumped overboard. The launch from which the shot had come kept on full speed.

Nearby were a dozen yachts and motorboats, among them the Bobbit, belonging to Lieutenant Commander Jackson Stone, U. S. N. Commander Stone and several others at once made for the distressed launch.

While his fast power yacht dropped a boat to pick up the oarsman, who was swimming feebly, the launch itself made after the shooter's launch.

Aboard another launch Director Ed Dillon of the Fox organization chuckled and urged the masked cameras not to lose motion picture realism. Commander Stone got the wounded hero all right—and joined in the laugh when he found it was George Walsh, the William Fox star, getting in one of the thrills of the "Winnipeg" Stroker's latest picture, in which he rows for Yale in the Yale-Harvard Varsity contest.

"AD" FOR A BABY BRINGS AN ARMY

Babies are the most plentiful things in all the world, if you ask Madeline Traverser. The Fox star made her discovery when she advertised for a two-months-old to use in her latest picture, "The Splendid Sin."

Said baby was wanted at the Fox studios in Hollywood. Cal. Miss Traverser figured that after the advertisement had run a few days several babies might appear.

They came in battalions and regiments. When Miss Traverser reached the studio the day after the advertisement was published she stood aghast, then burst into laughter at the sight of Director Howard M. Mitchell who, bravely but mistakenly, had started to pick a babe out of the mob. He abandoned the whole affair to Miss Traverser, who diplomatically solved the problem without hurting anyone's feelings, by running a picnic for the mothers while she inspected the army of offsprings and decided on the brand she could use.
