

MAYOR'S PLANS FOR MEMORIAL

Will Be Erected For Firemen Who Fell in Recent War

The firemen's memorial, for all those volunteers of the American Expeditionary Forces who fell in the great war, will be erected sometime within the next two years according to Mayor Keister.

The general plan of raising the funds for the memorial is this: Each fire company of the city will voluntarily contribute $100 to the memorial; this with the hundred that the Veteran Volunteer Fireman's Association will give will make $1500 with which to begin the amount needed. As there are over 2800 firemen in Harrisburg, a total of $4300 will be raised at the start, and with this as a basis the committee plans different entertainments at one time and another during the winter in order to raise the entire amount necessary for the memorial.

Mayor Keister feels that a monument or shaft of bronze will be the most fitting and permanent sort of memorial to leave to the memory of the firemen who died in the war. Anything in the nature of a memorial building he claims would be transient and would not outlast the years; a bronze monument will be an ever-present reminder. Reservoir Park or the River Front are the two sites under consideration for the memorial.

Rehabilitation No Longer Waits on Compensation

Washington, Aug. 19.—Since the amendment to the Vocational Rehabilitation Act was passed in July, compensation has a prerequisite to vocational retraining has been eliminated in the case of disabled men unable to follow their old trade, and the Federal Board for Vocational Education has the power and the responsibility to determine the discharged soldier's right to the benefits of this law. This relieves the delay which formerly was unavoidable, in placing disabled men in courses of training.

Under the law a second class of men, those whose disabilities are not such as to prevent their return to their former occupation, or to take up a new one, but who desire a course for improvement in the old trade or for some better trade, to such men the board is permitted by the law to give free instruction, but no subsistence is allowed. In such cases the Bureau of War Risk must declare the men compensable before training is granted.

TO REORGANIZE FOREIGN OFFICE

Germany Will Make Many Changes in That Department

Berlin, Aug. 19.—Reorganization of the Foreign Office will begin soon but it cannot be expected to move very swiftly since the newcomers must take some time to become acquainted with their new work, says the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung.

Already one new minister, an under secretary, a political director and a personal reporter have undertaken their new duties at the Foreign office.

The system will be altered so that one individual will control all whereas now political, commercial and new relations were handled separately.

There are about fifty diplomatic posts to be filled besides countless legation and consular positions. The rank which diplomats abroad will take is still uncertain and it is considered probable that many countries will appoint charges d'affaires, an example which Germany must follow.

The Allgemeine says that the General Commissary at Versailles, Director Simons, after leaving the State service, will become business director of the Imperial Association of German Industry.
