Unification of All U. S. Railways Suggested in New Bill Before Senate

Washington, Aug. 27.—Unification of the railroads of the country into one privately owned system with minimum earnings guaranteed, the management shared by the security holders, public, and employees and with provision for sharing excess profits between the public and employees is proposed in a bill introduced to-day by Senator Lenroot, of Wisconsin. The bill, which differs from the proposed plan, was drawn by the Citizens' National Railroad League in collaboration with Senator Lenroot.

Maurer Is Coming Home to Await Developments

Reading, Pa., Aug. 27.—James H. Maurer, taken on the steamer Lapland in New York yesterday, to-day telegraphed his wife that he is coming home to await results to inquiry into reasons for his detention. Maurer is chairman of the United States Pension Commission, and was going to Europe ostensibly to study pension systems there. About a year ago he was made a radical delegate from a labor congress in New York to a meeting of internationalists and radicals in London, but Washington frowned on United States representatives there and Maurer stayed in America.

Officials MUM

New York, Aug. 27.—Federal officials here to-day refused to comment on the removal of the steamship Lapland yesterday of James H. Maurer, of Reading, Pa., chairman, and A. Epstein, of Harrisburg, director of the Pennsylvania Old Age Pension Commission. The two men were taken off the boat three minutes before she sailed and their passports cancelled, it is said, on orders from the State Department. Mr. Maurer left for Washington last night, declaring he would demand action on the matter by the Pennsylvania Congressional delegation.

DIES AFTER HALF CENTURY'S WORK IN IRON MILLS

G. W. Armpriester, Former Superintendent of Central Iron, Was in 80th Year

George W. Armpriester, superintendent of the Central Iron and Steel Company for a number of years, died this morning at 2.30 o'clock at the home of his son, Barton A. Armpriester, 602 Briggs street. He was in his eightieth year.

Mr. Armpriester was still in the service of the Central Iron and Steel Company at the time of his death, having spent 53 years of his life in connection with the iron industry. Mr. Armpriester became a puddler's helper when fourteen years old. Later he became superintendent of the Pottstown Iron Company, Pottstown, after which he came to Harrisburg to assume the superintendency of the local establishment.

Butts His Head Against Wall and Tops It Off With a Swig of Ink

It didn't make much difference what he drank. Ink would do as well as anything, decided Wayne Kepford, of Fairview, during a short stay in the offices of Clarence O. Backenstoss, at police headquarters.

NEW JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOLS OPENED FOR FIRST TIME

Edison and Camp Curtin Schools to Accommodate 2,700 Pupils

Friends of Robert A. Enders and representatives of various civic societies in Harrisburg were very much impressed with the general excellence of the two new junior high schools, the Camp Curtin in the Tenth ward, and the Thomas A. Edison, in the eastern section of the city, during an inspection to-day of these two newly completed buildings.

The guests assembled at the Camp Curtin buildings upon invitation of Mr. Enders, the party including Superintendent F. E. Downes, Secretary D. D. Hammelbaugh, Architect M. I. Kast, designer of the uptown school, and C. Howard Lloyd, architect of the Edison building. Mr. Kast and J. J. Brehm, superintendent of the Camp Curtin school, took the party through the Camp Curtin school, which has more than three acres of floor space, and the Edison building, which will accommodate 1,400 pupils and the hill school was designed for 1,200 but 1,300 will be taken care of there.
