

THE "GET TOGETHER" SPIRIT IS ALL THAT IS NEEDED BETWEEN U. S. AND JAPAN

Japanese Ambassador to Mexico Declares Friendly Relations Between Two Countries Would Then Be Certain to Remain

Honolulu, T. H., Aug. 27.—The "get together" spirit, an international application of the methods of chambers of commerce and boards of trade, is all that is required to insure friendly relations between the United States and Japan, according to Baron Jutjori (Kori), Japanese Ambassador to Mexico, who is on his way home for a visit.

"To promote and insure a better understanding between the peoples of the United States and Japan, and to further neutralize harmful propaganda endangering friendly relations," said the Baron, "it is essential that henceforth honest and courageous efforts be made by all concerned to meet in open discussion of the political, economical and social problems facing the two nations."

An Endless Chain

Here is the endless chain of recommendations for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. There is hardly a town or village in the United States from which women have not written letters telling of health restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If you are suffering from some female trouble, ask your neighbor if she has ever used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In many cases you will find that she has regained health by its use and will recommend it to you.

Quick, Painless Way To Remove Hairy Growth

(Helps to Beauty) Here is a simple, unfailing way to rid the skin of objectionable hairs: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to cover the hairy surface, apply and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This is quite harmless, but to avoid disappointment be sure you get the delatone in an original package.

SIGNS ARE TO BE TAKEN DOWN

Highway Commissioner Sadler Orders Removal of Advertisements

Highway Commissioner Lewis S. Sadler to-day issued orders to the county road superintendents throughout Pennsylvania to remove advertising signs from the 10,235 miles of State highway on ground that such displays within the legal limits of a State road route are against the law. The superintendents are to commence forthwith to remove the numerous signs, some of which are declared by men who have been inspecting the highways to overhang roads in some instances and to be placed on poles and fences which are owned by the State. Cards of candidates for office and hotel signs are included in many of those which will have to be taken down.

A statement issued by the Department says: "Particular attention is called by the State Highway Department to the erection in eastern Pennsylvania of advertising cards in imitation of the Department's detour signs. Complaints have been received by the State Highway Department to the effect that travelers at night finding these imitation detour signs at cross-roads have been misled."

"In many parts of Pennsylvania candidates for office have been so busy in posting their cards that in numerous instances the entire highway limits of the pole extending six feet from the ground, has been hidden. Hotels have placed elaborate signs on poles within the highway limits. One case is reported where a hotel in a large city in an adjoining state placed enameled metal signs bearing the word 'Danger' in places where no word of that kind was intended. These and similar misleading signs tend to make the traveler careless, so that eventually he disregards real danger signs."

"On one State Highway route an enterprising proprietor of a rabbit farm decorated highway poles for several miles on both sides of his establishment with signs calling the attention of travelers to the location of his 'rabbitory.'"

"For Flood Control—A series of suggestions for prevention of floods at Reading prepared at the request of the mayor of Reading was made public to-day by the State Water Supply Commission, suggesting changes in the Schuylkill and other streams and along banks which would cost from $500,000 to $1,000,000. Control by dams and retaining basins is dismissed as impracticable by the Commission which states that some of the best sites are occupied by railroads. The Tulpehocken, which enters the Schuylkill at Reading is stated to be well adapted for dams, but its drainage area is not extensive and it would be more valuable for water storage for industrial purposes."

"PAINTED ROCKS" TO BE SUBMITTED TO EXPERTS

Symbols on Banks of the Columbia River, Washington State, Will Be Studied

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 27.—Whether painted symbols on the rocky banks of the Columbia River, in Klickitat county, Washington, are Indian symbols or whether they are the records of early Teutonic explorers is to be submitted to experts of the Bureau of Indian Affairs at Washington, D. C., for their verdict. That the pictures are fragments of the history of the tribesmen of the Pacific northwest is the belief of W. S. Lewis, of this city, secretary of the Eastern Washington Historical Society. He believes they are 250 years old.

The theory that they are the writings of European travelers of many hundreds of years ago is held by Olaf Opsjon, a student of archeology, who resides at Dishman, near this city. The same symbols discovered by Mr. Opsjon, he says, on a big stone on the seashore of Boston, Mass. The "painted rocks" are on the west side of the Columbia River, two miles north of Vantage Ferry. Among the "pictures" are those of two goats described by Mr. Opsjon as part of an astronomical symbol. He believes they were intended to indicate the equinoxes.
