here yesterday when they failed to score in two games against strong opposition. In the morning game against the Brandywines, of West Chester, Si Pauxtis' men were blanked by 2 to 0, then in the afternoon the Cincinnati Reds, minus Pat Moran and Jake Daubert, dropped into town and handed the second row of goose eggs to the locals by 4 to 0. This second affair was the big game of the season here and the Reds for some eighty minutes' work carted out of town just $1,200 flat for their little bit of pastining.

The game with the Reds had neen scheduled a long time before they were sure of their first National League pennant and in order to make the affair a general holiday one the Brandywines, of West Chester, were brought to town for the morning fuss. This was played in a drizzling rain which incidentally seriously held down the attendance in the afternoon for the big delegations expected from nearby towns were reduced to a corporal's guard, although some 1,200 fans were on hand when the big leaguers started the first of their three-game exhibition tour in this vicinity. To-day the Reds play at York and on Friday cross bats with the Kleins at Harrisburg.

Parkesburg Powerless

four locals reached first base during the hour and twenty minutes of fray, the other two getting on through a pass and error by kopf.

Cincinnati nicked Touchstone for ten hits, but had his support been good the Redlegs would have scored only two runs instead of their quartet of markers. The frommen did all sorts of queer stunts in the third inning and this took the life out of the contest.

It was learned that Cincinnati after booking this game here had been made an ofer of $2,000 from the New Haven club for to-day, but Secretary Frank Bancroft, of the Reds, refused to cancel the game here. New Haven then offered the local club $500 to cancel the Reds contract so that Cincinnati could play at New Haven, but this the local club refused to do, as it wished to give its patrons a chance to see a big league club in action this year. The vaudeville bill at the park this week makes an excellent evening's entertainment that one may take in either before or after the freworks display. A special matinee will be given at the park this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The twelfth juror was a woman, and the dramatic role is played by Florence Reed in the Florence Reed in the Was a Woman "The Woman Unter the Victoria Theater to-day, to-morrow and Saturday. The jury was out all night. The eleven men pronounced the defendant "Guilty" on the first ballot. The woman stubbornly asserts his innonence until the men become frantic. They have a fine line of circumstantial evidence arranged before them. Then the door of the jury room opens and a telegram is handed to the woman juror—she reads—but wait—words can't express the wonderful quality of "The Woman Under Oath," which plays at the Victoria for the rest of this week.

Throughout the performance of "Watch Your Step." Irving Berlin's internatinal syn"Watch Your Step" copated musical success, which will come to the Orpheum on Friday night. The accent is placed on motion and motion is given the right-of-way all the time. Feet have little time to rest in "Watch Your Step."

Edith and Eddie Adair, one of the clever teams in vaudeville have been treating Harrisburg-At the Majestie ers to a hearty laugh at the Majestic Theater the last half of this week with their offering "The Boot Shop." Realizing the humor in a woman purchasing a pair of shoes Mr. Adair made a sketch on this subject. It is certainly a scream. At least everyone that has seen it says 80.

Four other headliner Keith acts complete the bill. Another episode of "The Great Gamble," considered the greatest stunt serial ever produced is also being shown in conjunction with this unusually good bill.
