An increase in the public school enrollment this year is caused through older children, who have completed parochial school courses entering in public schools.

POSTMASTERS ARE IN CONVENTION

Geographically no city in the East is better situated; none have the train service which is such an important factor in a convention. Fifteen years of progress have shown that Harrisburg is a city which will take second place to none in the matter of civic improvements, and when we look about us we see the wonderful things accomplished in the last decade or so we can truly be proud of it and not be ashamed to extend the glad hand to strangers and tell them that the city is theirs and that what I do to you, ladies and gentlemen, for the next two days Harrisburg is yours, not ours. Accept the keys to its portals from me.

Start of Parcel Post The Mayor also warmly commended the postmasters for their patriotic and energetic devotion to duty during the strenuous war period. The speakers all in manner of credit, he told them, and the citizens of the State knew and appreciated that fact.

J. Stackpole, ex-postmaster and former president of the association, was the speaker for the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Stackpole complimented the postmasters for their war efforts and assured them that they maintained the morale of the country quite as much by their efforts as the speakers for war work did by theirs. By assuring communication with the boys overseas, said Mr. Stackpole, the postal service kept up the morale of the Expeditionary Force to a very considerable extent.

The former postmaster told several amusing stories in connection with the introduction of the parcel post system, which came into the time when he was leaving office after a twelve-year occupancy. Everything from brooms to babies was being shipped through the mails and the situation was rather hectic.

He severely scored the present spirit of unrest in this country which had insidiously crept in from the unhealthy element of European countries. The "against" spirit was entirely too prevalent, said Mr. Stackpole, and the postmasters of this country can take a good part in attempting to get rid of it. Optimism for better things ahead was the watchword and the criticism of persons, not officers, would assist in procuring better things. He appealed to the postmasters to crush the unrest which was everywhere manifesting itself. He also paid Mr. Sites a high compliment in the manner in which he has conducted the affairs of the postal department in Harrisburg. Mr. Stackpole closed with warm welcome to the visiting guests.

The President's Address

The closing address of the morning session was made by Horace Lehr, ex-mayor of Easton, and at present postmaster there and president of the association. Mr. Lehr expressed his appreciation, on behalf of the Association for the welcome which had been extended by the Mayor and the city of Harrisburg. He was a Republican representative in a Democratic convention, the welcome must be sincere. Laughter and applause greeted this statement.

He continued with an appreciation of Harrisburg, and its new hotel, which presented such increased advantages for a convention crowd. Mr. Sites was commended for the able way in which he had arranged the affairs of the convention. Mr. Lehr said he thought that everyone appreciated the difficulties of postal service during the war, and felt that the postmasters acquitted themselves most creditably. Although the peril of war is past the peril of radicalism is still present and he agreed with Mr. Stackpole that the duty of postmasters was to join in coping with this evil.

Mr. Lehr closed the morning session with the announcement of the Resolutions Committee, which will be composed of James Kingsbury, of Pottsville chairman, Charles I. Smith, Quakertown and Cornelius Allen, Du Bois. Mr. Lehr also announced that the tour of the Capitol Building which was to take place this morning for the women of the party at 11 o'clock, had been postponed until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Four of the City The afternoon session which began at 2 o'clock, included addresses by William D. McGinnis, of Conneautville, past president of the Pennsylvania Postmasters' Association, of Georgia, Leonard, inspector in charge, of Philadelphia, who spoke on "Efficiency in the City Delivery Service," and John A. Thornton, of Philadelphia, whose subject was "A Resume of the Conference of Representatives of Business Organizations and the Postal Service held in Washington, April 1-2, 1919."

The discussion of the afternoon included the topics considered at the Washington conference. Later in the afternoon the visitors with their wives were taken on an automobile ride through the parkways of the city as guests of the Chamber of Commerce.

This evening the reception at the Federal Building will take place at 8 o'clock. All visiting postmasters and their wives have been invited to attend.

The second and closing day of the conference will be occupied with two sessions in the morning at 10 o'clock and in the afternoon at 2 o'clock. The following addresses will be delivered at the morning session: "The Postmasters and the Press," E. M. Hirsch, P. M., Tamqua; "Meeting Emergencies," F. W. McFadden, P. M., McKeesport; "Parcel Post, Distribution and Delivery," Martin Klingler, P. M., Allentown; "Desirable Changes in Postal Laws and Regulations," A. J. Palm, P. M., Meadville; "Handling Complaints," W. M. Carter, P. M., Punxsutawney; "The Postmaster's Salary," M. J. Porter, Wayne.

2 P. M., address, Colin M. Selph, P. M., St. Louis, Mo., President National Association of Postmasters; address, John C. Koons, First Assistant Postmaster General; presentation of portrait of Benjamin Franklin from the Pennsylvania Postmasters to the Post Office Department, John A. Thornton, P. M., Philadelphia; acceptance of portrait, A. S. Burleson, Postmaster General.

AUSTRIANS TO BLAME FOR WAR

Ter-proposals and a covering letter reiterating that Austria had precipitated the war by an ultimatum unacceptable to Serbia. It was set forth, however, that the Allies were willing to assist Austria to adapt herself to her new situation and to admit her in the near future to the League of Nations. The treaty was presented in French, English and Italian texts.

The treaty was accompanied by a covering letter which, according to the forecasts, sets forth Austria's responsibility in aiding to bring about the war and points out that she therefore could not obtain treatment similar to that accorded to Slovakia and Jugoslavia. It is declared that recognition of the failure of Rumania to make written responses to the Council's notes. It is likely the Council will send an admiral in the near future with an emphatic note demanding an immediate response by Rumania to the Council's communications.

Rumania will not sign the peace treaty with Austria, according to Intransigent because of a clause introducing the formal request of the American delegates concerning the American minorities. Rumania also takes exception to a clause regulating treaties, concerning the railway rates. Intransigent says, considering that it would be undignified for her to accept it. The newspaper adds that the resignation of C. Bratianu as Premier is imminent.

The peace treaty to be offered Bulgaria, says the Temps, contains an article by which Bulgaria will bind itself to accept future decisions by the powers with regard to Thrace and the Aegean Sea.

Flume to Be Buffer State The Flume problem will be solved by an agreement that the city shall become a buffer state, with an extended hinterland, according to an interview with a prominent Italian which is printed in the Journal today. The city of Zara, it is said, will be made free.

WM. B. MEETCH, LONG PROMINENT, IS DEAD

land waters in that part of Florida have offered some excellent duck shooting and each winter Mr. Meetch spent many weeks living outdoors and engaging solely in this sport.

He is survived by his son, Harry W. Meetch, and two daughters, Mrs. Anna M. Frain, of this city, and Mrs. Sarah M. Stroup, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Stroup is the wife of J. Harry Stroup, formerly register of wills of Dauphin county.

As a political leader and hunter, Mr. Meetch demonstrated peculiarly unusual physical courage. Some of the tales of his experiences with the American grizzly and other large game were more than thrilling. He was the possessor of one of the largest Alaskan bear skins on record and his trophies of the hunt, it is understood, may eventually find their way into the State Museum, as he is said to have indicated a desire to have them placed in the State collection.

As a businessman he was remarkable for his keen judgment and insight and in the very midst of his political activities gave much attention to the large interests with which he was identified in a business way.

During his hunting trips he had many hairbreadth escapes. He was urged frequently by those who heard his interesting narratives to set down the stories of his hunting for his friends to read, and it is believed he once had complied to the extent of writing a few of his most interesting experiences.

For several days before his death he was practically blind, but was able to be taken out for an airing in an automobile less than two weeks ago. He was always possessor of vigorous health and never until his last illness showed any signs of weakening of his physical strength.

The dead hunter and political leader was a great philosopher and his observations on men and things were always in the very best of his mind. Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home. The Rev. Dr. Robert Bagnell, pastor of Grace M. E. church will officiate. Burial will be made in the East Harrisburg cemetery. The Grand Army will take part in the service.

Mr. Meetch was probably the most prominent hunter of big game in Harrisburg. From the time he was twelve years old he was a crack shot with the rifle and shotgun and his skill with these weapons was never dulled. Several years ago when he was about seventy, he went into Alaska in the quest of bears and, as usual, came out with a very good number of pelts, some of them of extraordinary size.

From Mexico to Northern Canada and Alaska and from Maine to the Rocky Mountains, Mr. Meetch has gone in for big game, having shot in every state of the Union, and his house is liberally decorated with skins and heads of animals that fell victim to his clear eye and steady hand. For the last six years he has spent the winter of his bungalow at Kissimmee, Florida, and has used it as headquarters for hunting. In
