

FAMILY COURTS TO MEET MENACE

to save it is by the establishment of family courts in which social evidence, as distinguished from legal, will be considered," Judge Hoffman said.

"There will be more than 400,000 divorce cases filed before the courts of the land this year, and something must be done to save our family life, the greatest civilizing force we have," he continued. "The family court should be an extension of the principle upon which juvenile courts are founded.

Correlate Work
"It will be possible, under this system, to correlate the work of the juvenile and divorce divisions of the court and obtain reliable scientific data. This is the final purpose of the family court and it will be through the facts developed that the requisite knowledge and information necessary for the regulation of marriage and divorce will be acquired.

Root Speaks
"A few meager rules embodying the fundamental principles of law that is necessary he added. "One of the great troubles with legislation to-day is that it does not permit the judges to do justice. Young and inexperienced lawyers in the legislatures who, because they did not turn out the way they thought it should, proceed as soon as they get the chance in the legislature to bring about the change they think ought to be made," were largely responsible for the condition, he thought.

Urges Tribunal
"There is but one way out, in my judgment," he continued, "and that is to appoint a tribunal with the power to adjust these matters, which has the time to consider and the opportunity to know the facts. Such a tribunal must not only have the power and be prepared to do what is right and just, by the labor employed on the railroads, but must have authority and power to see that property is not confiscated by its decisions. For, should you confiscate the property of the transportation companies you would break down the channels of transportation as effectively as you would break them down in a strike, with the resultant injury to the public. A tribunal of this kind must also have the authority and opportunity to consider the rights of shippers and travelers who in the last analysis will bear any increased burden that falls on the carriage of transportation lines.

destruction of property or business? If capital is proceeding or threatens to proceed improperly it can be restrained by injunction and the order enforced in the regular way. A court of equity should have, if necessary, enlarged powers of preventive remedy, unlimited by statutory provisions. If there is punishment to be imposed upon the individuals who are responsible and not upon the owners, stockholders or otherwise, of the properties involved, who are in no wise responsible for misconduct, Mr. Gary closed his speech with a declaration that this was not the worst, but the best period in our history. "It looks forward to a future that is bright and glorious if we rise to the heights of practical advantage."

Women to Hear Noted Lecturer Before C. of C.

Douglas Malloch, famous humorist, will be greeted by an enthusiastic audience of old friends when he makes his scheduled address on the "Poetry of Business" at the membership meeting of the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce at noon to-morrow, in the Penn-Harris Hotel ballroom.

The meeting will be featured by the presence of many of the fair sex. Chamber officials thought that Malloch's humor and philosophy were too good to miss, so they advised the members of the organization to give their wives, mothers, sisters and sweethearts a treat, by bringing them to the meeting. More than one instance is recorded at the Chamber offices where reservations are made for wife, mother and daughters by interested Chamber members.

Interest Is Growing in Business Institute
Interest in the Retail Merchants' Institute to be held in Fahnstock Hall next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings at 7.45 o'clock, is on the increase, and a large turnout of local merchants is expected when the meetings begin. Frank Stockdale, of Chicago, retailing counsel of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, and noted merchandising expert, will personally conduct the institute. The institute has been arranged by the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce with a view to making available to local merchants the best plans and methods in use to-day by the most successful merchants throughout the country. Admission will be free, as the entire expenses are borne by the Chamber of Commerce.

Ashes of Hundreds of Dead Are Stolen From Morgue at Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Sept. 4.—Seventy pounds of the dust of unknown and unsought derelict humanity last night was surreptitiously removed from the Allegheny county morgue. For what purpose and for what reason these ashes, the accumulation for many years, were taken, no person connected with the county institution has yet been able to determine.

The morgue records include many unclaimed dead during the past thirty years. Ashes from these remains have been allowed to accumulate for many long years that cremation has been practiced in the county until an amount estimated at close to seventy pounds was kept in a large receptacle in one of the morgue ante-rooms.

Deputy Coroner Horne, after an investigation, stated that the ashes were taken from the morgue and taken them had surrounded himself with a polyglot circle of friends, as every known race, creed and color was included in the outpourings of the crematory.

Finds Wife and Two Children Dead and Another Fatally Hurt

Richmond, Va., Sept. 4.—When C. B. Slaughter, a contractor, returned home last night he found his wife, 16-month-old baby and nine-year-old daughter dead with bullet wounds through their bodies and a third child fatally wounded. Before leaving home this morning, Slaughter said his wife asked him to explain the use of a revolver as she feared tramps. He said she was in excellent spirits and he has no explanation of the tragedy. The coroner announced last night that "the children met death at the hands of the mother, who was temporarily insane."

U.S. as Fertile Field

Referring to the question of race discrimination, Mr. Gary asserted that "it is possible that if comparisons are to intelligence and general merit were to be made between those who are permitted to immigrate to the United States and those who are denied that privilege, the advantage would be found in favor of the latter." He declared that these questions were appropriate for action by the League of Nations which should pass upon them by unanimous vote, "without unnecessary delay," after the League is completed and adopted.

American business men were warned that they were facing the fiercest commercial struggle in the history of the world. "Foreigners," he said, "are gazing upon this country as the most fertile field for adventure and exploitation. By every known means of operation Great Britain, France, Germany and other lands will seek to control or excel in the overseas trade. X X X X In justice to ourselves we must be diligent and aggressive. As of vital consequence there should be the most consistent and intense spirit of co-operation between all our people, between labor and capital, employers and employees, between the state and private interests.

Turning to the labor question, Mr. Gary said that the antidote for Bolshevism was plenty of work at reasonable compensation. He maintained that employers must not give employees good ground for complaint, but must furnish them agreeable and healthful conditions of work, and opportunity to advance and to invest their savings in the business with which they are connected. He predicted that Bolshevism would never gain a foothold in this country.

Government Ownership Fails

In respect to capital Mr. Gary declared that whatever evils might exist on that side of the question, government ownership had been proved not to be a remedy. "Whatever is everybody's business," he said "is nobody's business." Our experience during the war, he continued, showed that government ownership is a failure. Attempts to regulate capital by such punitive measures as the Sherman anti-trust law were also condemned by the speaker, who declared that such methods involved in whole or in part of the destruction of the property of business attacked. Admitting that capital, when uncontrolled, sometimes took improper courses, Mr. Gary offered a solution of his own. "Why not have the law framed and administered," he suggested, "so as to allow the courts to cover the whole subject by injunction, rather than by
