The Methodists are doing a great work among the young people. In 1729, John and Charles Wesley, at Oxford University, England, began a search for personal holiness which resulted in the formation of the Methodist Church. They and their followers were called Methodists in derision, because of their methodical habits in religion. The Wesleys maintained till their death their connection with the established The Wesleys maintained till their death their connection with the established Church of England, of which they were ministers. The refusal of the English bishops to ordain Methodist' ministers made it necessary for the Wesleys to ordain them and led finally to the independence of the Methodists. The first Methodist church in the United States was built in New York City in 1768.
