

Murdock Seeks Broader Powers

Washington, Sept. 9.—Broader powers for the Federal Trade Commission so it may "stand as a policeman," regulate business, reduce prices by maintaining competition and eliminate unfair practices, were asked of Congress by Commissioner Victor Murdock.

At the House Judiciary Committee's hearings on changes in anti-trust and other existing laws that might affect the cost of living, Commissioner Murdock declared voluntary combinations of business men tended toward eliminating competition and fixing prices. He intimated that he included the American Steel Institute.

"Wouldn't you like to investigate the famous Gary dinners?" asked Representative Steele (Democrat), Pennsylvania.

"That's an example of what we want to inquire into."

CONFERENCE CALL OVERLOOKED JUST PLAIN CITIZENS

Most Interested Parties Not Mentioned as in on Wilson's Plan

Washington, Sept. 9.—The eleventh-hour announcement by President Wilson, on the eve of his departure for a second prolonged absence from the capital, that he would call together a conference of capital and labor "at as early a date as practicable," has been received generally as an attempt upon the part of the Administration to soften the nationwide criticism of the President for leaving Washington at this time. Following almost immediately upon the heels of the suggestion by a member of the President's official family—Secretary Lane—that such a conference should be called immediately, and the resolutions introduced in the House of Representatives Rodenberg, of Illinois, and Strong, of Kansas, urging the President to postpone his proposed tour of the country until the present economic crisis had passed it can scarcely be doubted that President Wilson saw the necessity for taking steps that would at least give the impression that he was doing something to meet the situation. Hence, the announcement from the White House that a conference would be called "at as early a date as practicable," an announcement which, except for political reasons, might just as well have been made at the conclusion of the President's tour.

Idea Not New

There is no difference of opinion in Washington, either among Republicans or Democrats, as to the advisability of some such conference. Long before President Wilson's announcement, Senator Poindexter and other members of the Senate and House had introduced measures calling for the creation of such a conference, and the joint committee on labor is now at work, giving final form to a bill which will provide for the creation of a permanent economic commission to which all differences between capital and labor can be referred for adjustment.

This commission will be composed not only of representatives of capital and labor, but will also have in its membership representatives of the in-between class, the "plain citizens"—the clerk and professional man—those who get salaries instead of wages, and, in a way, the general public. This is a point, in the opinion of Chairman J. M. C. Smith, of the House Committee on Labor, which the President completely overlooked in his Labor Day announcement. Mr. Smith said today:

"The President, apparently, has nothing to say about the interests of the general public, in calling together a conference of capital and labor. It is the general public that is most vitally interested in all adjustments between the employer and the laboring man, and he should give a voice in such settlements. In the measures now being considered by my committee the citizen who is not directly concerned in the relations of capital and labor, but is indirectly affected very vitally, is given a place in these deliberations, which is the only proper way in which to arrange matters."

Trench Rent Story Nailed by Winship

Paris, Sept. 9.—Col. Blanton Winship, Judge Advocate General, and also head of the Requisitions and Claims Department of the American Expeditionary Forces, finally disposed of the old story that the French people claimed rentals for the ground occupied by the trenches at the front in his testimony before the committee of the American Congress which is investigating war expenditures.

He testified that no such claim had ever been made against the American Expeditionary Forces and that the only claims of this nature were for the use of the ground in the training area which was cut up and damaged in order to familiarize the men with conditions at the front.

THOUSANDS INSPECT THE BRITISH MYSTERY SHIP, P-31

London, Sept. 9.—Thousands of persons waited in line for hours to get a close-up peep at the P-31, a British anti-submarine "mystery" ship which was moored off Queen Victoria Embankment for a two days' public inspection at the close of the official Peace celebrations. The P-31 was the first of the "hush" craft the public was permitted to see at close range.

It was only ten yards from the embankment to the quaint looking U-boat fighter, but the intervening distance had to be made in small boats. These each carried eight passengers. It required but a few strokes of the oars to make the "trip"—and the fare was one shilling, so the waterman's pockets soon were bulging but there was no complaint about "profligating."

Among the thousands of curious who swarmed over the vessel were a number of American soldiers. Some of them took a peculiar interest in the guides' explanations and comment on the boat's "trick" fittings—her geared turbines, gaskets, depth-charge throwers and paravanes. It recalled to them a night of peril through which they passed from Southampton or Winchester across the submarine, or mine-infested English channel, en route to Le Havre or some other French port—and the war. That night of fearful expectancy passed safely, they had marvelled at the efficiency of the conveying craft, which they knew had been off in the darkness somewhere, ploughing through rolling breakers, eager for an encounter—with its frequent aftermath of "oil and bubbles" from a vanquished undersea boat.

But as these doughboy spectators heard a number of the crew of the "hush" ship say: "She does everything but loop-the-loop," and saw others demonstrate parts of the ship's fighting equipment hitherto kept secret, they understood why they had been so secure.

The "P-31" is 244 feet long, with narrow beam, seven-foot draught and equipped with independent engines, fore and aft, that can speed her through heavy seas at twenty-three knots an hour. Built high forward and low at the stern, the vessel has somewhat the appearance of a submarine—an effect that her designers intended.

"Fritz sometimes would think she was a 'sub' and would open fire on her—but when she slewed around in her own length and got into action, Heintle was sorry he had spoken," said a sailor who had been through eight engagements on the fighter. There had been other brushes with enemy craft, he explained, adding, "but unless you can bring home a bit of the corpse, the Admiralty say, 'Not Proven.' It's no use to tell them about the 'oil and bubbles' they're no proof because Fritz used to release oil and bubbles to make us waste ammunition."

During his forty years of constant practice Dr. Daniel G. Carey has helped many thousands of despairing kidney diseased men and women in all sections of the country to regain robust health.

Don't take any chances with your kidneys. If you have the faintest suspicion that your kidneys are weak or your bladder is irritated the wisest thing you can do is to get a bottle of Dr. Carey's Marshroot at once.

Remember, Marshroot is not a cure-all or patent medicine, but is Dr. Carey's most wonderful prescription, which he now gives to all the world and his army of patients only because he has decided to retire from active practice.

The tiniest signals often indicate that the kidneys are ailing and need attention.

Dry skin for instances and little specks floating before the eyes. Sometimes the feet feel heavy, as if your shoes were full of lead.

Often the joints ache or you have quick, darting pains shooting through the back of side.

Then again that frequent desire to empty the bladder, cold, clammy feet and just a little puffiness under the eyes.

Occasionally the hands or feet swell slightly and the palms of the hands are moist.

No regular practicing physician has devoted more time to the study of kidney and bladder diseases than Dr. Carey. He himself asserts that many thousands of cases of bright's disease and even diabetes could have been conquered by Marshroot. If it had been taken in time. Hereafter you can always get this effective prescription at George A. Gorgas and all reliable pharmacists the country over. Keep in mind the name, Dr. Carey's Marshroot.
