FIND NEW WAYS TO EARN MONEY

Disabled Soldiers Attract Attention Throughout London

London, Sept. 10 .- Disabled British officers who have been dis-charged from the service but who are unable to live on their pensions are unable to live on their pensions are attracting attention by the novel methods they are using to earn a little extra money.

Two of them appeared in Bloomsburg recently. Each wore his service tunic with wound stripes. Between them they trundled a street piano and the man who turned the handle wore the ribbon of the Military Cross. On the back of the piano was a placard bearing these words:

ords:
"1914—Not too proud to fight."
"1919—Not too proud to ask a

"1919—Not too proud to ask a gratuity."

"I am not at the last myself," said one of the officers, "but I couldn't see my friend go into the street with his machine alone. He cannot get work and he cannot get his gratuity, and he cannot live on a pension of $100 a year. His leg was shattered, and he wears a silver splint. He was in a hospital nineteen months. They give him a pension of $100 a year, but he can't get medical treatment, and the money due him as gratuity is not paid him by the Government. No doubt the Government will eventually pay it, but meanwhile he has to live.

"We are going to take this machine back. We had no idea the experience would be so humiliating."

All the money we have received has come from laborers and poor women. From the well-to-do we have not had a sixpence, yet a poor faundry woman gave us a shilling."

These young officers were not more than 21. Both had entered the army early in the war and had fought at Gallipoli. Both had been wounded at Passchendaele on October 26, 1917, and both had been invalided out of the army.

The evening of the same day a party of street singers, two men and a woman, attracted a crowd in Piccadilly. Both of the men wore the silver badge of men who had been discharged from military service as physically unfit.

Footpads Killed Bank Messenger, Is Belief of Police

Milford, Conn., Sept. 10.—Developments in the case of Benjamin Binkowitz, a New York bank messenger whose murdered body was found in woods here on August 20, turned to-day to attempts to make identity absolute and to determine whether he was slain near where his body was found or in New York state. The body was disinterred but was in such a condition that his mother, here to view it, was not allowed to do so. New York police officers present inclined to the belief that Binkowitz met death here at the hands of thieves who had trailed him from New York.

Strong, Physically Constituted Peopl Run Little Chance of Ill Effects from "Flu" — People With Thin Weak Blood Should Regain Strength

Thin Weak Blood Should Regain Strength

People with good red blood should withstand germ diseases like the "Flu." Because good, pure blood has a generous amount of white corpuscles (called fighters), whose soled duty in the blood is to fight off germs and waste matter and carry them out of the system.

It's the advice of a noted physician that people who are pale and have menergy and who feel despondent over their lack of strength and good red blood should begin at once to revitalize their impoverished blood. Renewed blood, strength and force will be their greatest fortification against the "Flu."

Thin, weak blood can best be strengthened by an effective blood food such as Novo San (meaning new blood). Novo San is not a stimulant that gives you immense strength magically but is a pure and efficient blood builder made of elements that gain almost immediate access to the blood. It is particularly strong as a blood builder because of its power to add white corpuscles to the blood—just the element in the blood, weak rundown people will need to fight off "Flu" germs.

White corpuscles being the health protectors of our system and as Novo San is recommended to add white corpuscles to the blood you can do nothing better for yourself than to go to-day to any good druggist like H. C. Kennedy or George A. Gorgas and get a package of Novo San is beles. In twelve days you should feel new strength and force.—
