GOVERNOR MAY GO AFTER VARES Indignant at the Attacks Being Made Upon His Appointee to the Philadelphia Bench

Considerable interest has been aroused here by the possibility that the Governor may decide to take part in the Philadelphia primary campaign for the Vares turn against Judge J. P. McCullen and in favor of Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell and W. C. Wilson.

The Governor is said to have served notice and the Evening Ledger says that if the Vares disregard his warning they will have "cold pickings" for the three years around Harrisburg and in the State.

One of the developments of the Philadelphia contest is that county commissioners have been charged by the Governor's registration commission with not working to get the primary election machinery ready.

The Press says that the charge is that the county board is trying to commandeer the Vares vote, while the Inquirer says that a panic has hit the Vares.

The $50,000 claim of the Central Iron and Steel Company, of this city, against the Pennsylvania and Reading railroads, and property and terminal operations in South Harrisburg is listed by the Governor's registration commission with not working to get the primary election machinery ready.

Investigation of the charges of collusion between officials of building and loan associations and property and terminal operations in Philadelphia will probably be undertaken without any further loss of time if it has not already been started.

Information furnished to the Banking Department now has men who devote their time to examinations of building and loan associations and has authority to overhaul any such organizations if it is found that the assets of associations are being used for speculation.

The Public Service Commission has sent to the Pittsburgh Railway Co. a copy of the complaint of A. E. Anderson that the company violated its obligations when it failed to operate cars during two strike periods this year.

Considerable stir has been caused here by news from Wilkes-Barre that arguing the payment of a 10-cent tax by a discharged soldier did not entitle him to vote, M. F. Shannon, tax collector of Wilkes-Barre, raised a question in court.

Attorney W. S. McLean, representing the Commonwealth, argued that the primary act cannot be attacked because it is not provided for in the Constitution, while Charles F. McHugh argued the act unconstitutional. He pointed out the qualifications necessary.

The question came before the court on a writ of pre-emptory mandamus on Michael F. Shannon to compel him to accept 10 cents from service men.

SPROUL WANTS A HOUSECLEANING Wants Degrading Influences Taken From Public Office and School Affairs

While Governor William C. Sproul's call to the voters of Delaware county to rout the McClure faction at the primary on Tuesday and redeem the Republican party in the city of Chester and the county of Delaware from what he styles "a degrading and sinister influence" in the local politics of the community was written to show how the Governor feels about it the lesson is held by the newspapers to be applicable to every part of the State.

The Governor has lined up against the liquor interests in Delaware county and has issued a statement that will be read with interest, declare Philadelphia newspapers, in every part of the State.

The Governor says in part: "If we wish to perpetuate our Republican party in the city and county we shall have to change our methods of selection and have our ticket representative of the people rather than any selfish interest. It would be better to have no party than to permit its organization and prestige to be used solely for personal advantage and private gain."

"For years there has been much evidence of a sinister and degrading influence in our local politics and in the passing of the command of the nation at large, our people have a right to expect a better day in their public affairs. It would be intolerable now to continue the same influence in a new formation but just as selfish and even more ambitious in its plans for power and gain. So, win or lose, we cannot sit by and see our community controlled by evil purposes and unpatriotic ends. The fight must be continued this year and next year and thereafter until it is won for all time."

"Even the school boards are not safe from the political business hunters. To meet a menacing situation the State has, this year, appropriated additional millions for better teachers' salaries and for improvements in the schools. This money will have to be met to attain the desired school efficiency, by heavier levies upon taxpayers. Nearly a million dollars should be expended upon Chester's schools in the next few years. This is a rich bait for the exploiters of public contracts. It is unthinkable that the people of Chester will permit their schools, the fact of their teachers and the welfare of their children to become the prey of those whose interest in the success of causes of education is entirely selfish."
