Investigator who attempts to ascertain how much oil has been conveyed from Mexico during the past few years and what the profits are to those who have ventured to sink fortunes in an effort to tap the petroleum deposits that are known to underlie certain portions of the republic.

A statement recently furnished to the Associated Press by the Department of Commerce and Industry graphically portrays the growth of this industry which now, as during the war when its wells furnished much of the motive power that took troops and supplies to France and victory, occupies such a prominent place in the relations between Mexico and the United States.

From 1901 to 1918, inclusive, the production of crude petroleum in the republic amounted to 285,910,798 barrels, every year showing a constant gain over that previous.

During the year of 1918 out of 63,828,826 barrels of petroleum produced two companies (El Agulla and Huasteca) produced 37,107,104, according to the statement's figures.

Export data indicates that Tampico leads all ports, in 1918 more than 5,271,012 tons of petroleum having left that harbor. Approximately half that amount left via Tuxpan.

According to the statement, there are 299 producing wells in Mexico.
