Hummelstown, Sept. 15.—Miss Mary Ella Hartwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hartwell, 206 Poplar avenue, Hummelstown, and Grover Lee Rainey, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rainey, of Faber, Nelson county, Virginia, were married at Washington, D. C., on Monday afternoon, September 15, at 5 o'clock, in the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, by the rector, the Rev. Percy Foster Hall. The couple were attended by Captain and Mrs. Fred B. Sanderson, of New York, and the ceremony was witnessed by several Washington friends. A wedding supper was served at the home of Mrs. William Bowers, 129 Quincy Place, N. E.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN PAUL WEIDENHAMER

The marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Garber, daughter of Mrs. Sarah M. Garber, 34 North Second street to John Paul Weidenhamer, of Washington, D. C., took place at noon yesterday in the Marble Collegiate Church, New York city, with the pastor, the Rev. W. H. P. Dailey, officiating.

The attractive bride wore a charming costume of dark blue Georgette crepe embroidered in silk chenille, and panne velvet hat to harmonize. Her corsage bouquet was of orchids and lilies of the valley. Following the wedding breakfast, the newlyweds started for a journey through New England and returning will make their home in New York.

BALDWIN-HIESTER WEDDING TODAY

Ceremony Solemnized at the Hiester Home by the Rev. Dr. George E. Hawes

A beautiful home wedding was solemnized this afternoon at 4 o'clock when Miss Matilda Willis Hiester, daughter of Mrs. William A. Hiester, and Chauncey Clark Baldwin, of Perth Amboy, N. J., were united in marriage at the Hiester home, 1319 Park Front street, the Rev. Dr. George Edward Hawes officiating.

The bride party entered the parlor where the ceremony took place, through an aisle of white ribbons held by Miss Esther Howland, of Buffalo, N. Y., Mrs. A. W. Greeley, of Baltimore, Md., Mrs. Andrew White and Miss Ruth Pratt, both of Perth Amboy.

The bride wore a gown of white broadcloth chignon tulle, embroidered with pink and white flowers. Her hair was styled in a bun and she wore a crown of pearls and an elaborate garniture of pearls covered the shoulders and part of the bodice, extending below the waist in heavy panels. The only lace used was a piece of rose point worn by the bride's mother on her wedding day, and the short train ended in a fish-point tail. The bride carried a bouquet of pink snapdragons and orchids.

Miss Mary Catherine Hiester, as maid of honor for her sister, wore a gown of pink chiffon satin with overtones embroidered in silk and a hat of silver lace and orchid tulle. She carried an arm bouquet of pink snapdragons and orchids.

Marius Darrow, of St. Louis, was best man. Artistic Decorations A decorative scheme of pink and orchid was effectively carried out by Utley, except in the parlor where the decorations were of green and white. The bride party standing in an alcove banked with palms, between two mantels covered with a profusion of white roses, lilies and asters. Tall baskets filled with masses of white flowers relieved by touches of green, were artistically placed throughout the room, and the chandeliers and noorways were adorned with green.

ADMIRAL SIMS' STORY

Tells of the Activities of U. S. Navy in the World War

ADMIRAL W. S. SIMS

Official authorization has been given by the United States Navy Department to the publication of ADMIRAL SIMS' STORY of the participation of the U. S. Navy in the World War, and arrangements have been made by the Philadelphia Bulletin to publish it in complete installments each Saturday beginning September 20th. The narrative is intensely interesting and confirms previous reports that on June 26th, 1917, Admiral Sims, who had been sent abroad to confer with the Allied naval staffs, found that as things then stood Germany was winning the war.

Admiral Sims' story will amaze the world. Had it not been for the co-operation of the American Navy and the adoption of the convoy system, the submarines would have starved Great Britain, cut off her communications with the continent, and brought her to abject surrender by November, 1917.

This would have meant the immediate defeat of France, America, (with the British fleet in the possession of the Germans) would have been left with her whole seaboard open to attack.

Admiral Sims' story starts with a graphic picture of conditions as they existed in April, 1917, when the United States entered the war. It will be the first complete revelation made of the situation at that time, a situation not dreamed of by the optimistic public.

Sims, knowing the real and desperate condition of affairs, was the man to decide in what way the United States could best play her part in the naval war. He was a strong advocate for an offensive rather than a defensive fight against the submarine. "Seize the initiative yourself—don't let the enemy have it," was his motto, and his official story of the activities of the United States Navy tells how effectively American daring and aggressiveness on the high seas thwarted the submarine menace.

Admiral Sims' story will appear exclusively in The Philadelphia Bulletin, beginning Saturday, September 20th.
