H. B. Warner is scoring liberally in his latest success, "The Pagan God," which shows to-day At the Colonial and to-morrow for the last times at the Colonial Theater. Warner takes the role of an American secret service man detailed for service among the Chinese. He finds a beautiful girl who is being held by the worshipers of Pagan, an idol who is alleged to have a larger following in the Far East than Christ. He attempts to save her and in so doing casts his lot with her. This, however, is not a religious play, but is a wonderful production in its own right, featuring a versatile star. The Westerners" will be shown.

Wallace Reid will appear at the Regent Theater to-day and to-morkegent Theater to-day and to-morWallace Reid a picture which has at the Regent been proclaimed the fastest and most highly entertaining of his career. The story was written by O. Henry, under the name "The Halberdier." The title, "You're Fired!" is quite appropriate and is representative of the main situation in the story.
Wallace Reid plays the role of a young man upon whom is imposed the task of holding a job for three months without being fired, as a condition precedent to his marrying the daughter of a railroad owner. Wanda Hawley, that exquisite little actress of the blond type, appears as the leading woman. Theodore Roberts and Kaymond Hatton are other members of the cast.

Included in the program at the Regent to-day and to-morrow is the Paramount-Drew comedy, "Sisterly Schemes."

Fred Elliott, rube comedian, scored a big laughing hit at the opening show yesterday at At the Majestic the Majestic Theater. Elliott is a funster of the old country type. He plays several instruments very well and injects lots of jazz and mirth into his
