Would You Like Me to Reduce My Prices?
 Value considered my prices are extremely low. This is due to my low operating cost which figures back again to large volume in small quarters. And the more business I do the less my percentage of mark-up. This season I'm working on a closer margin even, than last.
 But there is one way in which you can be assured of even lower prices. And it's entirely up to you as to whether or not I can still further reduce my mark-up. If you'll help me lower my costs I promise you to shave my percentage of profit still further. It's a simple matter of accounting.
 If I could spread my business out through the entire day instead of having it concentrated in the afternoon it would make a vast difference in my salary expense. My girls could sell much more at no more cost. And you can bring this about. By a very simple device. SHOP HERE IN THE MORNING.

Visiting the Shops with Adele
 In a few short weeks the freezing blasts of winter will sweep down upon us, causing Mildred to muffle herself in soft, warm furs. Even now, she seeks them in the shops, purchasing them in advance, lest a sudden, chilly day should catch her unawares. Contrary to previous ones, she winds her way to the Closs Shop, in the Empire building; for she has learned in the past few months where to go when in search of the best. Without being told, she knows that the Closs Shop carries the approval of even the severest critic, and on finding the beautiful assortment of black, brown and taupe furs, her expectations are fully realized.

DO you suffer with rheumatism? Isn't it an awful thing? Sometimes the pain seems almost unbearable, and frequently, despite the use of various cures, it becomes worse instead of better. Its victims invariably reach the stage where they resort to nearly anything to obtain relief. Now, I know where you can get a rheumatic plaster that has wrought veritable miracles in many instances. Dr. George C. Potts sells it at his Third and Herr street drug store and only yesterday a man was telling how much it helped his case. People send for it from Florida and from Canada and several local men were completely cured by its use after all else had failed. So the next time you feel the first warning twinges of pain you'll know what to do—get an A. P. C. Rheumatic Plaster!

WITH the World Series fast approaching and the football season at hand, it behooves us to begin considering the question of smart, proper costumes suitable to wear to the games. The matter was brought to my mind to-day by the sight of a beautiful pair of men's shoes. "There," I said to myself, "aren't they the very thing for a well-dressed man to wear to a game?" They surely are, being the latest novelty in men's tan shoes. They come in long narrow effects in Double A and B and, while possessing unusual style and quality, sell for just $12. Let me suggest that you visit the Paul Shoe Shop, 11 North Fourth street, and look at them for yourself.

STRAIGHT from the shops of the Roycrofters come the wonderful hand-painted pieces of hammered copper displayed in the window of the Art and Gift Shop, 105 North Second street. Perhaps in the last few days you have passed that way and have seen the attractive bookends, bud vases, candlesticks, desk sets, clocks and various other articles produced by this clever group of artists. If such is the case, you will surely agree with me in saying that in form, coloring and workmanship they have nothing to be desired. Each piece is a work of art and would lend a charm to any room in which it was placed.

ARE you, by any chance, in search of antique chairs? If you are, you will undoubtedly be glad to hear that Mr. Salsgiver has several odd, attractive ones of solid mahogany at his Art and Antique Store, 223 North Second street. They are Colonial chairs, belonging to the Empire period, and in several instances the seats are covered with quaint patterns of chintz. Each one is made of genuine mahogany and bears the unmistakable imprints of the period to which it belongs. A certain sturdiness of design, combined with grace of line, characterizes them in every case, making them most desirable.

Well-Known Local Folks Married in Pittsburgh
 Mr. and Mrs. Waidley Rhinehart, of 807 South Front street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary H. Rhinehart, to Daniel J. Dwyer, of this city, at Pittsburgh, Tuesday evening, September 23, at the home of the bride's cousin, Charles Johnston, the Rev. Theodore G. Shuey, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, officiating. The bride wore a modish traveling suit of blue chiffon broadcloth with hat to harmonize, and Mrs. Samuel Fortenbaugh, of this city, were the only attendants.
