

Additional Soldiers Arrive in Omaha to Preserve Order

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 30.—Additional military forces, eleven officers and 250 men from Camp Funston, Kan., and twenty officers and 550 men from Camp Grant, Illinois, today joined the Federal troops already on duty here as a result of the race rioting last Sunday. Major General Leonard Wood, commander of the central department of the Army, also arrived to take charge of the military operations.

The city was quiet during the night and there was no sign of trouble. A heavy rain, which kept the people off the streets, was considered a great aid to the authorities, who had taken precaution to guard against a fresh outbreak of Sunday's rioting, which resulted in the lynching of a negro, the death of one white man and injury to many others, heavy damage by fire to the county courthouse and an attempt by a mob to lynch Mayor Edward H. Smith.

Reports to-day from the hospital where Mayor Smith is confined were that his condition was improving. The attempt to lynch the Mayor was made after repeated endeavors on his part to prevent rioters from securing William Brown, negro, who was finally taken from the county jail by the mob, shot, hanged and burned, on the theory that he was the man who recently attacked 19-year-old Agnes Lobeck.

DECLARES CUMMINS MEASURE IS ILLEGAL

Ex-Justice Hughes Says So-Called Excess Earnings, if Just and Reasonable, Are Property of the Railroad Companies; Cannot Be Taken

Washington, Sept. 30.—Holding unconstitutional the provisions of the Cummins bill for railroad reorganization which would take for the Government excess earnings of the roads over a "fair return," an opinion by Charles E. Hughes, rendered to the Association of Railway Executives, has been filed with the House Interstate Commerce Committee considering the bill.

Former Justice Hughes contends, in brief, that if rates which produce so-called excess earnings are just and reasonable rates, as they are presumed to be when fixed and regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission, then the earnings from those rates are the property of the railroad companies, which may be taxed, but cannot be taken away, as that, he argues, would be confiscation.

Just Rates Only "All the rates fixed and maintained," he says, "are at all times open to inquiry, and the commission has full authority to insist that they shall never be more than just and reasonable. Section 6 of the bill providing for the payment to the Railway Transportation Board of the so-called 'excess' earnings does not provide for a determination of the rates under which the described 'excess' has been collected by the carrier, nor just and reasonable rates for the services rendered. If, however, the rates thus fixed, charged and received by a carrier are to be deemed just and reasonable for the services rendered, the carrier is entitled to these receipts as its property, and the taking by the Government of any portion of these receipts (except under a valid tax) for general governmental purposes or for the benefit of other carriers would appear to be a taking of property contrary to the Fifth Amendment of the Federal Constitution.

Bill Doesn't Lay Tax "The provision of the pending bill is not a tax laid upon all carriers with respect either to gross receipts, or net receipts, or any other basis for the assessment of a tax, but is simply a requirement of the payment to the Government board of the 'excess' earnings of a carrier which the Interstate Commerce Commission determines to be more than a 'fair return' upon the value of its property. Such an exaction goes beyond the limits of any decision known to me, and if the rates under which the so-called 'excess' earnings are collected by the carrier are to be deemed to be just and reasonable rates, fixed and maintained as such under the authority of law, I am unable to escape the conclusion that the requirement as to the payment of the so-called 'excess' earnings of a carrier exceeds the constitutional authority of Congress as applied to carriers not transacting their business under a Federal franchise or contract imposing such a condition."

To the argument that the fixing of rates by a regulating authority may be considered only tentative, and that the rates so fixed may be assumed to be unreasonable if they produce excess earnings, Judge Hughes holds that what is a reasonable rate cannot be determined in this way, which is not a regulation of either rates or service, but of earnings. Congress and the Interstate Commerce Commission, he says, have no power to permit the collection of rates which are extortionate, even for a temporary period; and, therefore, what is a reasonable rate for a given service at a given time must be ascertained at the time the rate is made.

Great Crowd Difficult to Handle but Police Put Forth Best Efforts

The difficult task of handling the big crowds that thronged the entire route of yesterday's parade, was comparatively well performed by Harrisburg police, working in conjunction with City Boy Scouts.

All along the route the crowd, eager to get the first glimpse of the marching veterans, threatened and did on a number of occasions overstep the boundaries. City patrol men, however, worked well and with few exceptions had the crowds at such distance there was no delay in the line of march.

The business section of the city was filled with one of the greatest crowds, which proved to be quite difficult to handle. Market Square, especially, was badly congested and here the police found their most difficult work. The crowd as a rule was well behaved and speedily obeyed orders from the police.

Germer Resigns From American Socialists

Chicago, Sept. 30.—The resignation of Adolph Germer as National secretary was accepted at a meeting last night of the executive committee of the American Socialist party at which also was adopted a resolution characterizing the effort to unseat Victor Berger as congressman from Wisconsin, a direct blow at "representative government."

Otto Banstetter, Chicago, was chosen to succeed Germer. The committee, in a prepared declaration, expressed the opinion that there was "vital need of reviving the international." The National secretary was ordered to get in touch with the nationals of other countries.

Under instructions from the recent National Convention a committee was named to prepare a declaration of principles to be working program of 1920.

PLAN WIDENING PUBLIC LIBRARY'S FIELD OF SERVICE

It is evident from the prompt and generous response of those citizens of Harrisburg who have been approached with a view to securing a fund large enough to assure a more extended use of the Harrisburg Public Library in the schools of the city that the plan which has been previously outlined can be carried out. School libraries have been already established in more than 20 of the buildings, but the insufficient revenues of the main library make an increase of the appropriation necessary through personal contributions. Individual trustees have taken upon themselves the burden of solicitation for this cause. One familiar with the school work said to-day:

"Provisions for gratifying a taste for good literature in grown-ups and for developing a similar taste in young people is commonly regarded as a legitimate activity of the school. Such facilities are provided for in this community in a limited way by the Harrisburg Public Library. Thirteen thousand people, including about 4,000 young people, have qualified to take books from this library, and the average monthly circulation of books is about 10,000 or about 120,000 a year. "At the time of the occupancy of its present building at Front and Walnut streets, the library's income was approximately $100,000 a year, $5,000 of which was contributed by the school board, the balance being derived principally from invested funds. This income is not increased. It remains the same to-day. It would seem that, as the community grows in numbers and the taste for good reading improves through indulgence, the library's usefulness should also legitimately increase; and it is increasing, even without increase of revenue, as the librarian and her force of assistants become more proficient and the facilities offered by the library, limited though they be, become better known. But with more funds, better facilities, and therefore the usefulness, of the library can be extended. "The Harrisburg Public Library and the State Library are not competitors. The State Library furnishes every facility for those desiring to do research work, etc., but the Public Library has clearly the broader fields of usefulness. One of these it is now proposed to develop. At an expense for the current year of $2,500, it is proposed to purchase a library of about 100 volumes into each of 20 of the public school buildings, the books being very carefully selected with the view of meeting the needs of the children in the building thus supplied, according to age, etc. It is proposed, further, to employ a high-class, trained woman to give her whole time practically to the work of developing the use of these school libraries, and of getting and keeping the children in touch with all facilities provided by the Public Library, all to the end that they may develop a taste for wholesome, helpful reading. "This seems to be something peculiarly constructive, for a taste for good literature is certainly a great help in the development of good citizenship and the capacity for happy living. It is not quite so showy an activity, nor does it yield results that are so immediately apparent, as relief extended to a sick or a hungry man, but it must be infinitely better to provide a child with the head and heart equipment to intelligently and successfully meet the evil impulses that yielded to, lead to suffering and sorrow. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, and here seems to be a good place to put the ounce on the scales. The plan which these $2,500 will enable the Library Association to carry out are made with such care and thoroughness that good results cannot help coming out of them."

Prof. J. Howard Wert, in a recent newspaper letter commending certain educational features of a contemporary of The Telegraph in another city, said: "The writer, during an active educational career of almost 40 years as a county superintendent of schools, and as the principal of the Harrisburg and other high schools, never failed to make it his aim to inculcate in teachers and pupils a love for good reading. He has had his rich reward, for, in more recent years, hundreds of men and women, in all walks of life, have thanked him profusely for the advice given and the benefit they had derived from following it."

Facilities of our Public Library will be extended to all the public schools as rapidly as funds will permit, but our people must make this possible by generous support of the splendid institution at Front and Walnut streets.
