Roman Auto Co. Will Move to New Home

About a month ago the Roman Auto Company purchased a million-dollar piece of property at 227,229-231-233 North Broad street, Philadelphia. This enormous property, which has a tremendous frontage on Broad street, will be occupied on or about October 6 as the future home of the Roman Auto Company.

It is the intention of the Roman Auto Company in the future to build on this site a ten-story fireproof building, including an up-to-date service station and a machine shop thoroughly equipped.

The Roman Auto Company has been selling used autos for the past 14 years and in recent years have done much to elevate and put the second-hand automobile on a much higher plane.

second-hand automobile on a much higher plane.

Lewis Isenberg, Dave Isenberg and Oscar Isenberg are the members of the firm of the Roman Auto Company, and each one is an expert in his line.

The property purchased by the Roman is located on Broad street, between Race and Vine streets, and extends through to Watt street.

The used automobile is becoming more popular every day, owing to the fact that it can be purchased at a great reduction from the original cost, and in many instances gives just as good service and satisfaction as a new car.

Drunkenness in England Decreases

London, Oct. 1.—Lord D'Abercorn, head of the Liquer Control Board, in a speech at Carlisle, vindicating the government's policy with respect to intoxicants, declared that there had been a great decrease in drunkenness due to State control.

The work of the board, he said, had vindicated the school of moderation and of reasonable and scientific control. He claimed that the Control Board "had put an end to the appalling condition of drunkenness and inefficiency which existed in 1915 and which paralyzed the war efficiency of the country."

It means for the motion picture patrons that Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and D.

W. Griffith hereafter will be enabled to produce pictures in their own way.

They will make fewer pictures than they have made before, and this in itself will be an advantage. Here to fore they have been obliged to turn out a certain number of productions within a given period and consequently have not always had the time to perfect their work. It is doubtful if any motion pic
