"THE GUEST OF HONOR" PLEASES

William Hodge and Master
Graham Lucas Win
Much Applause

Once in a very great while a comedy romance embodying all of the heart-gripping interest of the drama finds its way before the theater-loving public. And all too infrequently does a star of the magnitude of William Hodge find himself with such a vehicle to transport him deeper into the hearts of his audience. Such a play was "The Guest of Honor" as it was presented at the Orpheum last evening, before a house which was packed to the doors. Mr. Hodge, as John Weatherbee, a struggling poet who refuses to look upon the dark side of his future, finds himself the guardian of little Jack Weatherbee, last rungs himself the guardian of little Jack Weatherbee, last rungs himself the guardian of little Jack Weatherbee, as grown of the cleverest, lisping-est, little actors who ever bowed behind a footlight. One of Weatherbee's was playing opposite Aluce Brady in a long term series of productions, was playing opposite Aluce Brady in a long term series of productions, was playing opposite Aluce Brady in a long term series of productions, was playing opposite Aluce Brady in a long term series of productions, was playing opposite Aluce Brady in a long term series of productions, was playing opposite Aluce Brady in a long term series of productions, was playing opposite Aluce Brady in a long term series of productions, was playing opposite Aluce Brady in the series of the company are journeying down to five company are journeying down will send several days there on location.

There are several reasons why our fur coats are preferable. One reason is that the furs are selected by us before they are manufactured into the coats. Another reason is we buy only the very finest furs, regarding anything but the finest as undesirable.

Our manufacturers design our fur coats along simplified lines which are always suitable for more than several season's wear.

We purchased our furs a long time ago which makes it possible for our prices to be quite a bit lower than fur coats purchased at today's prices.

And we have an assortment which is to be considered very unusual in this class of merchandise.

State. He is now making arrangements to photograph for the screen every individual or group of individuals who contributed to Harrisburg's part in the war. He proposes to photograph the members of the Liberty Loan committee, National War Aid Society, the Red Cross Chapter, the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., K. of C., Jewish Welfare Board, Boy Scouts, and all kindred organizations which p'ayed a part here in the World War.

Invites Suggestions

With the pictures already taken, these additional photographs will form a complete record—or as nearly complete as it is now possible to make *it. In this work Mr. Magaro cordially invites suggestions from those interested in perpetuating Harrisburg's part in the war. It is a monumental task, and unless there is full co-operation some very significant detail may be lacking. In speaking of the project to a reporter for the Telegraph, Mr. Magaro said: "I hope the public will not think that because I am owner of the Regent Theater I am trying to further the interests of my playhouse in this matter. I am doing it because I realize what the value of this record of Harrisburg's activities will be in the years to come. Think what it will mean 10, 20 or even 50 years from now to be able to show Monday's Welcome Home celebration on the screen.

"The Telegraph printed a picture this week of the arcn erected in Market Square to welcome the boys after the Civil War. It interested all who saw it. The same will be true of these pictures years from now. They will not only show the celebration, but they are records of the present buildings and the styles of the scenes taken Monday of the Welcome Home celebration of the scenes taken whonday of the scenes taken Monday of the colearly understand the possibilities and the full scope of this lession.
