presents received by them while in Europe.

Mr. Tumulty's statement follows:

"While on his western trip the President's attention was called to the resolution of Representative Rodenberg, of Illinois, and the statements of Senators Penrose and Sherman in regard to gifts received by the President and Mrs. Wilson, while they were in Europe.

"Senator Sherman indicated the basis of the various stories touching this matter when he said that 'cloak room gossip laid the values of these gifts at half a million dollars.' Senator Penrose said he had been informed that the Presidential party 'brought back to this country presents from crowned heads and foreign Governments amounting to seveign Governments amounting to several million dollars.'

"The Facts"

"Here are the facts:

"Outside of a considerable number of small gifts, such as books, walking sticks, an old silver dish found in the ruin of Louvain, war souvenirs made by soldiers out of war material and numerous medals struck off in his honor, the following are the only important gifts received by the President in Europe:
"In England: Photograph of the King and Queen of England.

"The President also received numerous honorary degrees from nearly all of the countries of Europe, and many resolutions of respect and gratitude.
"Knowing that there is a constitutional inhibition against the President receiving gifts from foreign rulers or States, the President, after consulting the Secretary of State, was preparing a list of the presents he intended to ask the permission of Congress to metain, just before he started on his western trip.

The investigator, hearing of the ease with which you can get hard liquor if you camouflage your request with that cabalistic lowering of the left eyelid, walked into a prominent hostelry whose bar is still doing business at the old stand and asked in a decently modulated tone for ginger ale. The request was accompanied by the well known wink. The barkeep reacned into the ice box and then did something under the bar—the investigator thought he was getting the stick—and set the drink on the bar. It was ginger ale and no mistake. What the man was doing under the bar was putting some ice in the glass. The bartender thought the wink was some form of morning salutation.

2.75 Not Guaranteed

The barkeep was uncertain how to take the advances of the fresh stranger, who winked and was more or less noncimmittal to his questioning. After another visitor had quenched his thirst with a glass of beer the investigator wanted to learn if the drink was one-half of one per cent. Or the well-advertised two seventy five. "How do I know," answered he of the white waistcoat, "they put it in here, they call it beer and we serve it for beer."

Police Believe Unsettled Conditions Following End of War Responsible

Petty larcenies and robberles re-

Petty larcenies and robberles reported to Harrisburg police during the first nine months of 1919, show an increase of almost 70 per cent, over those reported during the same period of 1918.

The value of the goods stolen during the nine month period ending September 30, likewise shows an increase over the 1918 record, although it is not correspondingly as great. The excess this year is but slightly more than 11 per cent.

Police Explain Conditions

The figures as reported for this year are approximately those of a normal year in the city, it is understood. The big increase this year over last year's record results from the abnormally low record of last year. With every industry booming and with practically no unemployment, thefts naturally showed a decrease last year.

This year, however, affairs have become more nearly normal. Industries in many instances have slowed up and with a greater supply of labor of all sorts, resulting from the demobilization of the military forces, there has at times been considerable unemployment.
