

Tech High School Notes

The Story Telling Club has arranged for programs to cover the next fourteen weeks. Vice-president Keller and Secretary Weinstaub remain from last year, and they will direct the affairs of the organization until new officers are elected. Professor Bowman is the faculty director.

The French Club, whose membership is limited to students of the French language, has elected "Haps" Franck as president. The secretary is George Germer, and the treasurer Leon Mallick. Professor Meikle will direct the activities of the organization in the interest of the French language.

The Tech Tattler Club, composed of 35 members of the school, who will publish the school paper bi-monthly, have elected Elmer Heffkin, editor-in-chief, Milo Matter as associate editor, and "Bus" Snyder sports editor. The remainder of the staff will be elected at the next meeting. The first issue will come from the press the latter part of this month. E. E. Knauss has charge of this club.

The Sophomore Dramatic Club, supervised by W. E. Strawinski, has begun work on several plays to be presented before the school during the coming year. All of the members students of the second year class. Cown is president; Cless, vice-president, and Graeff, secretary.

Paul Kunkel is president of the Mathematical Recreation Club, and John Paul, vice-president. Wendell Taylor is secretary. L. B. Nye directs.

The Tech Debating Club will argue weekly, and many times in between. Leroy Strawhecker is president and W. Clyde Rife, secretary. Professor Billow is the adviser.

One of the first organizations to be active this year was the Edison Club, that studies all phases of electricity. Its membership is limited to boys who are studying the subject. W. B. Longenecker is the director. Officers of the club include: Ernest Baker, president; Ross McCord, secretary; sergeant-at-arms, John Skone; reporter, Willard Thrush; assistant, Stoner; treasurer, Kraber, and vice-president, Leib.

The Stamp Club will be directed this year by D. Reminger, and at the meeting yesterday, Daniel Burkholder, one of the most enthusiastic stamp collectors of the school was elected president. He served as the first president last year. William Sowers is vice-president; Henry DeLaney, secretary, and Harvard Sellers, treasurer. Stamps of the United States will be discussed at the next meeting of the philatelists.

Various phenomena of natural history will be discussed by the Natural History Club during the coming weeks of the year at Tech. In the early fall and spring the boys will discuss birds. During January and February, stars will be studied. In spring flowers will also be discussed. Frank Gregory, Robert Keller and Roy Manning are the officers who will assist Professor Grubb.

One of the oldest of the organizations at Tech is the Camera Club. So many of the boys are interested in the camera that two clubs were formed. Mr. Lewing and Mr. McCune are the advisers. For Camera Club No. 1, Luther Kraber, Melvin Spengler, Russell Lippi and Cyril Guarin are the officers. Directing No. 2 are W. Keller, Carlton Gradner, B. A. Rich and C. Frankenburg.

The Tech Gun Club has one of the largest memberships in the school. Assisting Professor Shretner will be "Burr" Douglas, president; Arthur Wilsbach, vice-president; Howard Derrick, and Leslie Poland, secretaries.

Twenty-nine boys of the school belong to the Cartoon Club that was such a success last season under the direction of J. W. Campbell. The boys decided to start the year by copying faces and expressions. William Bowman is president; Percy Walker, secretary and treasurer; Daniel Krieger, curator; Judges, Lindsay Webster, Floyd Hassinger and Harold Kimmel.

One of the new organizations is the Business Club. It is composed of boys who are pursuing the business course under Mr. Burris. William Pleam is president; Roy Wagner, vice-president, and John Huston, secretary.

"Buddie" Lingle of the senior class announced to-day that the first of a series of Tech dances will be held at Hanshaw's Hall by coming night, October 20. The affair will be open to all members of the school, but will be a senior affair managed by the class officers.

Many of the boys who are pursuing the business course under Mr. Burris, will be decorated with the school and class colors and music will be provided by a five-piece musical organization.

Professor Harclerode has introduced the Tech boys to a new song book that is being urged at the chapel exercises. Standard songs, featuring community singing, is its content.

John Black is color bearer this year who has school salutes the flag during chapel exercises. "Bob" Lutz carries the school flag during the singing of "Hail, Dear Old Tech."

Many of the students of the school will hear Cecil Fanning at Chestnut street Tuesday evening.

A new method of handing out the first quarter of the year will be inaugurated this year. Instead of the grades being sent out from the office, each teacher will send out a card each quarter. The card will contain the grade of one teacher for one subject. In addition to the grade it will also bear the attendance of the pupil, and the teacher's name. These cards will have to be returned to the teacher with the parent's signature. It is expected that the new plan will bring about a closer relationship between the teachers and parents.

NEWSY JOTTINGS OF THEATER AND SCREEN

CYRIL KEIGHTLEY IN "A LITTLE JOURNEY"

Interesting facts of how the actors and actresses that one sees in the current plays entered the theatrical profession is always the subject of much speculation. Aside from a few favorite stars, whose names are as familiar to our own, but very little is known of the real personalities of the players who visit this city week after week.

In "A Little Journey," which appears at the Orpheum Theater on Wednesday, October 8, for a matinee and evening performance, are assembled a score of players who rank among the highest in their chosen profession. For nearly a year they have played in "A Little Journey" at the Vanderbilt Theater, New York, in this brilliant comedy by Rachel Crothers. The greater number of them have been associated for years with leading successes in the theater and have appeared in this city time and time again.

Take Cyril Keightley, who plays the role of Jim West, the big-hearted open-handed Westerner. Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Egypt, England, Canada and the United States know this name which stands for a finished natural, theatrical art, so typically rendered in "A Little Journey."

Billie Rhodes in her forthcoming production, "Hearts and Masks," from the novel by that name by Harold McGrath.

Constance Talmadge's second First National picture, which, like "A Temptational Wife," is an Emerson-Leos production, has been definitely titled "A Virtuous Vamp," instead of "The Bachelor," as it was originally called.

World Pictures will have ready for distribution this coming week a new picture in Europe with much success, entitled "The Last of the Seminoles."

Alice Joyce is making rapid progress on "Pride," the story by William E. Courtney, in which she again assumes the daughter of luxury type of character.

V. P. Whittaker, general representative of Select Pictures Corporation, is making a tour of some of the original and at times very interesting, in the interest of the sales department.

William Selzer, who for the past eight months has directed Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven in their many comedy successes, has been selected by William Parsons, president of the National Film Corporation, to direct

TO-night, Max Brav presents D. Meyerovitz in "Victims of the World." (Yiddish).

To-morrow night only, Jos. M. Gaites presents Kitty Gordon in "Love For Sale."

Wednesday, matinee and night, Oct. 8, "A Little Journey" with Cyril Keightley.

Thursday, matinee and night, Oct. 9, "The Smarter Set."

Friday night only, Oct. 10, John Cort offers "Listen Lester."

Saturday, matinee and night, Oct. 11, "Hil Say So" with Murray and Mack.

High class vaudeville. Regal and Mack in "The Book Shop." Four Arolos, clever xylophone quartet; Murray and Voelk, comedy and nonsense; Clara Howard, singing comedienne, and Alexander and Sparks, a lively comedy offering. Also second episode of the new serial "The Fatal Fortune," featuring daring Helen Holmes.

To-day and all this week Nazimova, the star of a thousand moods in "The Red Lantern."

To-day, to-morrow and Wednesday, "Rites" Pastore, a wonderful photoplay.

All this week, Douglas Fairbanks in his new picture "His Majesty, the American."

The bill which opens at the Majestic theater to-day promises to be a most exceptional one. Good throughout.

At the Majestic Four Arolos start the vaudeville program with an unusual xylophone offering. These men have a wonderful act which they presented in Europe with much success.

Regal and Mack, two well known vaudeville artists are offering "The Book Shop," a fast moving comedy playlet. Three other acts complete the bill. The second episode of "The Fatal Fortune," the new serial featuring Helen Holmes, is the most daring woman in the movies, is also being shown.

The Victoria theater management is offering an unusual attraction for the week in "Victims of the World."

At the Victoria this week in their presentation of "Rites Pastore," a photoplay that is different from the ordinary play. It deals with the one passion that makes some men far above others. This production has only been released recently and therefore has not as yet been played in New York, but it will beyond a question create a furore in motion pictures realms here.

No increase in admission has been made for this feature. The prices remaining 10 and 20 cents as usual.

Nazimova's new production, "The Red Lantern," now showing at the Victoria, is a photoplay that is different from the ordinary play. It deals with the one passion that makes some men far above others. This production has only been released recently and therefore has not as yet been played in New York, but it will beyond a question create a furore in motion pictures realms here.

The great mass of fact and fancy contained in Edith Wherry's novel has been supplemented by the addition of Mr. Fairbanks in six of his best roles, so that every individual screen will have the absolute stamp of historical and ethnological authenticity.

Douglas Fairbanks will appear at the Regent Theater all of this week in his newest picture, "The American." Great interest has been aroused here in this picture, as it is the first production released by the United Artists Corporation, the so-called "Big Four."

This production demanded not only very unusual and elaborate settings, but also an especially strong cast. In providing these essentials and also in what was to be the first release of the new concern, "Doug" spared no money in making the picture. One of the sets is said to have cost $40,000, and there is an array of talent supporting the great star.

The feminine lead is played by Marjory Daw, who has now appeared opposite Fairbanks in six of his best productions. Her work in this picture has already won her star.
