

MANY HORSES STOLEN IN BERLIN

Special Police Seem to Be Unable to Capture the Thieves

Berlin, Oct. 10.—Thirty-five to forty horses are stolen each day in Berlin, and a very small percentage are ever returned to the owners despite the creation of a special police department to combat this evil. The horses disappear forever because they are usually immediately slaughtered and the meat sold through illicit trade channels. The thieves watch for teams the drivers of which have left them for a moment, and drive the horses away. If the wagons contain anything of value it is stolen and the horses are taken to secret barns and sheds, or even to wooded suburban sections, and killed immediately. Insurance companies that used to insure horses and teams will do no more.

To Prosecute Bandits in Mexican Oil Regions

Tampico, Oct. 10.—Representatives of the principal oil companies in this district and various federal military chiefs met here the other day to discuss plans for better protection of petroleum properties and the lives of employes. The meeting was presided over by General Francisco Murguía, chief of military operations in the region, and is said to have resulted in an amicable agreement calling for a prosecution of bandits.

OLD COURTHOUSE CLOCK PRESENTED

Dauphin County Historical Society Receives Unique Relic of Olden Days

Members of the Dauphin County Historical Society, who last night listened to a paper of rare interest by Captain John H. Campbell, of the State Internal Affairs Land Office, on the methods of land patenting in Pennsylvania of to-day, were presented with the clock which kept time and "record of the minutes" in the old Dauphin county court house. The presentation was made by B. M. Nead, president of the society, in an address which traced the history of the ancient timepiece in a most entertaining way.

After the meeting the executive committee arranged for an expansion of the work of the society, which has been made the depository of the records of Dauphin county's soldiers in the World War, and a series of programs of much local interest was outlined, the first to be presented at the November meeting. The rooms of the society will also be brought to attention of the public so that it can enjoy the numerous articles and records it contains. These plans will be announced from time to time.

At the opening of the meeting re- sults of the meeting were presented by Mrs. Elizabeth Crain Kunkel, long a member of the society, were presented by George F. Ross, and on George W. Parsons, for secretary of the executive committee, were read by Dr. Hugh Hamilton, a life-long friend.

Captain Campbell's paper told of many interesting things in that storehouse of records, the State Land Office, and described the patenting of lands from the days of William Penn with an outline of the procedure followed when Pennsylvania passed from province to Commonwealth. He told how the office now operates and interpreted his paper with some incidents of unusual importance in local history. Captain Campbell was given a rising vote of thanks for his paper, which will be preserved.

The old clock was given to the society by William M. Hoerner. In presenting it, Mr. Nead gave an outline of the early courts of the county, which were held first in a log house near Front and Washington where Judge Green sat for the first time in the spring of 1785, being held later in the old log jail on the jail lot just in from Court and Strawberry streets; then moving to the commodious building on the site of the present Central hotel and moving to the first court house either in 1799 or 1800. This building was occupied until the Legislature went into the court house when it first came to Harrisburg and the courts moved again to the White Hall tavern, now the Charlton, to one of the churches, and later to the brick building on the site of the Bell Telephone building at Court and Walnut streets. The old clock was in the first court house and followed the courts to temporary buildings, being for a time either Salem Reformed or the old First Presbyterian church and remaining with the courts to the present court house where it was discarded and became the timepiece in the old Hershey house where it got to know a generation or two of Harrisburgers.

The clock is a huge white round affair with a figure of justice in the center. It is now, as Mr. Nead said, "to keep company with many of its friends of long ago" in the collection of the society.

British Villages Organize Clubs to Better Community

London, Oct. 10.—More than 350 English villages have organized branches of the Village Clubs Association, a union of rural community societies through which it is planned to make country life more attractive. In each of these communities, clubhouses have been constructed varying in size and appointment from a simple reading room, which may also be made to serve as a general meeting place, to Nettiebed's pretentious village hall which offers men's and women's dressing rooms, library, reading and billiard rooms, a play shed, skittle alley, rifle range, kitchen and cookery school.

In the organization of these clubs, four points are given prime consideration—the eligibility of both women and men to membership, that the clubs shall be nonpolitical and nonsectarian, that they shall be self-supporting and that they shall be administered by a committee elected by the members.

Hindenburg Living on Private Estate

London, Oct. 10.—General Von Hindenburg, once commander of the German armies, is now living on his Hanover estate, the quiet life he left to enter the East Prussia campaign five years ago, writes a correspondent. Absence of the uniform makes a big difference in his appearance. Wearing a short, rough coat and a Panama hat, and no very well cut trousers, his burly figure looks as though it were bursting out of his clothes. He looks like a bank manager or an ordinary German business man. Frau Von Hindenburg has a pleasant face, and might be the wife of a country parson. She has flat hair, wears her skirts long, and smiles often.

Lighting Is Cut in Half in Berlin to Save Fuel

Berlin, Oct. 10.—Drastic lighting restrictions intended to save fuel were published to-day. No one may use more than 50 per cent. of the quantity of gas or electricity consumed during the same quarter of the year 1918. Restaurants, cafes, hotels, concert halls and other places of amusement may use up to thirty-five per cent. of that employed in 1918. Street lighting is reduced to thirty per cent. Street cars are to be stopped at 10.15 p. m.

Carranza Names Cabinet Officer

Mexico City, Oct. 10. Prior to leaving for a visit to his home state of Coahuila, President Carranza announced the appointment of General Francisco L. Urquiza as sub-secretary of war and of General Pablo Gonzales as "jefe de la plaza" which gives him jurisdiction over all federal forces in the capital.

ORPHANAGES ARE FLOODED

Serbian Institutions Can Only Care For One Thousand Four Hundred Children

Belgrade, Oct. 10.—Pressing need for relief work among the children of Serbia is shown in a report issued by the American Red Cross which states that of 360,000 orphans and half orphans in the country, only 1,400 can be cared for by existing orphanages.

A considerable proportion of the orphans outside the institutions are cared for by relatives, most of them in reduced circumstances themselves. It is estimated that about 100,000 fall in this class. The others have maintained a precarious existence during the summer months as the charges of communities that will find it hard to provide them with shelter when the cold weather arrives.

The immediate problem of the American and Serbian relief agencies is the finding of shelter, food and medical attention for the homeless children for the coming winter.

Mexico Adapted to German Emigration, Newspapers Declare

Coblenz, Oct. 10.—Mexico is pictured by various German newspapers as a country perfectly adapted to Germany's future needs so far as emigration is concerned. Emil Zimmermann, in the Deutsche Wirtschafszukunft, deplores the attitude of many members of the government who believe that Germany should attempt to keep all her people at home. Much more reasonable and sensible, Zimmermann asserts, is the view of those members of the government that the only cure for the labor unrest and the great amount of unemployment throughout Germany is to get rid of as large a number of laborers as possible through emigration.

"Aviation Tea" Is New Social Fad

San Francisco, Oct. 10.—Seven socially prominent women of Oakland, across the bay from San Francisco, were entertained recently at an "aviation tea" by Mrs. G. A. Buckingham, mother of Cliff Durrant, the aviator and automobile racer.

The guests were whisked aloft singly for flights of from five to twenty minutes in one of Durrant's three airplanes, later discussing their experiences over the tea cups.

FALKENHAYN DEFENDS CAREER

Declares German Losses at Verdun Were Not Excessive

Berlin, Oct. 10.—In defense of his administrative career as chief of staff of the German armies in 1915 and 1916, General Erich von Falkenhayn denies that German losses at Verdun were excessive. He declares they were under those of the enemy.

German defensive operations at the Somme, he declares, were effective under his direction whereas only limited results previously had been achieved. The successes of the English and French at the Somme, he claims, were possible only because of the Austrian collapse which necessitated the dispatch of heavy reinforcements to the eastern front.

Von Falkenhayn declares the swift success of the Rumanian campaign which he commanded after his dismissal as chief of staff was due primarily to exhaustive preparations of the General Staff before his retirement. Rumania's declaration of war, he states, was the external pretext for his retirement although this move on his part was primarily due to the machinations of other persons in the German military circles who had been plotting his overthrow for a long time.

DOING things in an extraordinary way is quite the ordinary way at this store—particularly in our Millinery Department.

So for some time we've been planning an "extra" extraordinary millinery occasion for our patrons.

We told our plans to one of the largest millinery houses in the country, with which we do a big business, and they said "we'll do our part to help you put it across."

And when you see the 25 dozen smart models they designed and made up for us you'll agree that they've more than done their share.

They arrived yesterday, just in the nick of time for Saturday. So the big event we've planned for you takes place tomorrow.

It's very rarely that you can buy hats of this character at such a low price. Be sure that you do not miss this occasion.
