Now Is No Time For Freakish Styles

For extreme styles become obsolete before the garment is worn out. And with clothing as expensive as it is nowadays surely one wishes to secure all the wear there is in a garment.

But so far as that goes I have never bought extreme styles. I feel that aside from the question of its going out of style women of good taste prefer the more conservative models.

It has been said of a well dressed man that he is one who is so unobtrusively clothed that after one has passed him on the street one would be unable to describe his suit.

So strong a statement may not apply to women but in any case generally speaking the better one's taste the less extreme the style one selects. Don't you agree with me?
