

Advocates League of Cotton Nations

By Associated Press New Orleans, Oct. 16.—A League of Cotton Nations was advocated here by W. Irving Bullard, of the Merchants' National Bank of Boston, speaking to the World Cotton Conference.

Urging the necessity of a world cotton federation, Mr. Bullard declared that the world's need of harmony and understanding was no less economic than as an insurance of political peace and progress. The need cries aloud over a war-shaken world, he said, for a spirit of cooperation and mutual service in cotton.

America's task and problem, the speaker pointed out, is primarily the raising of cotton. The spinning of cotton concerns such a nation as England, but the world supply of cotton, of machinery, of yarns and fabrics is a world affair. By a world federation benefits would result to both the consumer and the producer.

SOME GUILTY "Now if guilty, you may get as high as three years."

"But I ain't guilty whatever." "The discreet attorney, however, is empowered to recommend a six-months' sentence on a plea of guilty."

"Take him up, boss. I guess I'm that much guilty."—Louisville Courier Journal.
