[Continued from First Page.] which he said are even, under the best conditions, apt to spread disease. Needed Improvements He spoke in behalf of all the loans, and expressed the hope that the members of the three organizations unite to tell their neighbors the benefits to be derived. Governor Beidleman was frequently interrupted by applause and at the close of his address was accorded an ovation. Mr. Manning in his address spoke of the necessity of thinking of Harrisburg's future in the broadest terms. He said that the future of the country is now being studied with regard to regions rather than States, and that Harrisburg is fortunate in lying at the junction of two great highways, one along the Appalachian system from New England through New York to the Gulf along the Susquehanna Valley and thence on South and by a highway marked generally by the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad from East to West. He reiterated what he said about having beaches before the Navy last night and talked of the necessity of connecting up the links of the parkway system about the city and of extending this to take in a territory of 40 miles. He paid a high compliment to the work of J. Herman Kinsley and E. Clark Cowden in working out the fundamentals of a state development plan and fastidiously the Harrisburg of a hundred years hence as a great industrial and residential center, with homes scattered far and wide and extending over the low mountains to the north and west.

MAKE EFFORT TO FRAME PACT

[Continued from First Page.] had a leading part in framing the labor-public declaration on collective bargaining yesterday said that he would offer at least two amendments to the resolution should it be sent back to the committee of fifteen. Getting Down to Business With the introduction of a resolution by the capital group giving its views as to the right of collective bargaining, a spirit of conciliation was manifested. L. E. Sheppard, head of the Railway Conductors' Brotherhood, said he saw in the resolution a sincere effort at closer co-operation between capital and labor in the meeting and declared that in his opinion the gathering was "just getting down to business." Announcing that the impatience manifested by the labor group Thursday had now given way to a willingness to wait any reasonable length of time, Mr. Sheppard said his group saw every prospect of a harmonious adjustment of the difficulties existing between the right and left wings of the conference, as a result of the employers' resolution. Utmost Concessions Immediately after the conference met Harry A. Wheeler, of Chicago, chairman of the capital group, presented a declaration outlining what were said to be the utmost concessions his group was disposed to make. It follows: "Resolved, that, without in any way limiting the right of a wage earner to refrain from joining any association or to deal directly with his employer as he chooses, the right of wage earners in private, as distinguished from government, employment to organize in trade and labor unions, in shop industrial councils, or other lawful form of association to bargain collectively, to be represented by representatives of their own choosing in negotiations and adjustments with employers in respect to wages, hours of labor, and other employment, is recognized; and the right of the employer to deal or not to deal directly with groups of men who are not his employees and chosen from among them is recognized; no denial is intended of the right of an employer and his workers voluntarily to agree upon the form of their representative Smith, whose plane was burned at Buffalo while being repaired, to enable him to continue his return trip westward from that city. Captain Smith has applied to the air service officials at Washington for permission to use Major Spatz's plane and said he was ready to start as soon as he received authorization. Smith, flying the plane used by Major Carl Spatz over more than half the course of the transcontinental contest, left here at 12:29:30 for Cleveland. Major Spatz voluntarily surrendered his De Havilland Four to Captain Smith, who, up to the time his plane was burned here, was leading the western division of flyers doubling back from Mineola. Air service officials at Washington had authorized Captain Smith to resume his flight if satisfactory arrangements could be made with the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation for a machine to replace the one destroyed and these negotiations were still in progress when Major Spatz arrived from Rochester shortly after nine o'clock today. Upon learning of the situation Major Spatz sought permission from Washington to give up his airplane to Captain Smith.

About 125 representative young people from the Sunday Schools of Harrisburg and vicinity gathered at Market Square Presbyterian Church last night under the auspices of the Young People's Division of Dauphin Sabbath School Association. The Rev. Howard Rodgers, division superintendent, introduced Preson G. Orwig, State superintendent, who presented the object of the assembly: the holding of an older boys' and girls' campaign in Harrisburg. Mr. Orwig said that Adams county and many others were getting ahead of Dauphin county in challenging and training young people for Sabbath School leadership, since only one conference was being held here. The representatives were enthusiastic in wanting a conference and determined on a goal of 300 delegates; about double the number who attended the first conference. It was determined to hold the conference the first week of December. The details of work were turned over to committees.
